Angered European Slaps Congo Boss

By Lynn Heinzerling

Leopoldville, Congo (AP)—Premier Patrice Lumumba was slapped in the face by an angry European at the airfield here Thursday night as he and President Joseph Kasavubu were about to board a plane. Both were taunted by an angry European crowd.

The incident passed without major violence.

The pair then flew off to Stanleyville, where, some reports said, they might seek to set up a new Congo capital now that this capital is under Belgian troop control.

When they appeared at the airport Lumumba and Kasavubu were booed by the European crowd.

"Murderer, traitor, raper," some shouted at them.

Then the crowd broke into shouts of, "To your knees, to your knees."

Lumumba remained serious but impassive and Kasavubu was silent as their Belgian pilot tried to pacify the crowd.

Meanwhile reports that Lumumba had announced the breaking of diplomatic relations with Belgium were denied by Lumumba's chief of cabinet.

The belief that they might try to establish a new capital in Stanleyville appeared to raise the possibility of this triangular split in the vast, sprawling Congo: 1. Leopoldville under control of Belgian troops, 2. Elisabethville, capital of the rich Congo province of Katanga where Premier-President Moise Tshombe has said he is seceding from the Congo and will rely on Belgian troops rather than U.N. forces, and headquarters for Lumumba and his government.

U.N. Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche said he expects troops to start arriving by Saturday and his announcement appeared to be generally welcomed. A consensus held that only a strong force under a U.N. banner can restore order.

Many Belgians expressed regret that there will be no American troops.

"We would have felt much more confident if the great United States had been included," said one Belgian officer. "We understand however, that in the delicate circumstances of an emerging African nation such as the Congo, it would have been difficult to include Americans."

Plan For Access Is Submitted

'Initial' Schematic Version—Hossack

By Betty Person

Schematic plans for Lincoln's access route to the Interstate Highway were submitted Thursday to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads by the State Highway Department.

Acting Deputy State Engineer G. C. Strobel described the schematic plans as the "most initial" sort of plans —"something to which we can refer in our future conferences between city, state and federal officials."

The schematic plans are scale sketches of Scheme No. 5, the plan selected late last year by city, federal and state authorities.

Lincoln Route

Lincoln's access route, estimated at $7.4 million, covers a 3-mile stretch, 1.9 miles of which is located in the city, the remainder in the rural area where it connects with the main Interstate Route 80 at an interchange near 4th and Superior.

Southern terminus of the access route has not yet been selected, but S Street is under consideration, Strobel said.

Ninth and 10th would be incorporated as a one-way pair along the southern end of the route, then the road would travel northwest between 6th and 7th, then north across the east end of East Oak Lake to near Benton, then northwesterly to the interchange.

Katanga To Secede From Congo Union

Elisabethville, Katanga (AP)—The Katanga provincial assembly ratified secession from the Congo as proclaimed by provincial President-Premier Moise Tshombe.

In breaking with the Leopoldville regime, Tshombe declared its premier, Patrice Lumumba, and his government are communist.

Tshombe's government twice prevented Lumumba and Congo President Joseph Kasavubu from landing here this week on their air journeys around the Congo.

Tshombe is relying on Belgian forces to restore and keep order and declares Katanga will not admit U.N. troops. The province is the richest in the Congo with resources of uranium, copper and other minerals and upland prairies that produce cattle.

U.S. WILL SHIP CONGO FLOUR

Newport, R.I. (AP)—President Eisenhower Thursday authorized the immediate shipment of 300 tons of flour to the strife-ridden Congo.

The President said the shipments will be flown to Leopoldville in answer to what was described as an urgent appeal to the United States government from the secretary general of the United Nations.

The President said the flour will be assigned to Leopoldville from stocks available in Europe.

Democratic ticket-headers Sen. John F. Kennedy and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson pose after Kennedy picked the Texan as his runing mate.

Boyle Says Demo Ticket Is Winner

...Bryan Honored At Convention

By Don Walton
Star Political Writer

Los Angeles—National Committeeman Bernard Boyle of Omaha Thursday said the Kennedy-Johnson unity ticket "insures the election of a Democratic president in November."

Nebraska delegates, although unable to express themselves in a roll call vote, were generally satisfied with the vice-presidential nomination of Sen. Lyndon Johnson.

Most of the Nebraskans had earlier expressed a willingness to settle for whoever Jack Kennedy wanted for a running mate.

Settled By Kennedy

When Kennedy made it clear Thursday afternoon at a jammed press conference at the Biltmore that his choice was Johnson, the matter was then and there settled.

"I am very pleased with the ticket," Boyle said.

"It puts together two of the greatest men in the Senate."

"It makes the strongest possible unity for peace and prosperity."

Bryan Memorial

Boyle had earlier appeared on the convention platform to offer a resolution memorializing Nebraska's William Jennings Bryan.

In front of national television cameras and under the glare of the sports arena's dozens of spotlights, Boyle paid tribute to the 100th anniversary of Bryan's birth.

Convention delegates stood for a moment of silence in honor of the former 3-time Democratic presidential nominee.

Tours, Parties

Nebraska delegates toured Disneyland Thursday prior to the convention session.

All Nebraskans at the convention gathered Thursday night at a party staged in behalf of the delegation by the Hollywood Inn Motel.

Delegate Frank Morrison of Lincoln left Los Angeles earlier in the day for his return automobile trip to Lincoln.

Other delegates remained in the convention city for final sessions Friday night.

Acceptance speeches by Kennedy and Johnson will be preceded by 3 hours of entertainment at the Memorial Coliseum, headlined by Hollywood stars including Frank Sinatra and Steve Allen.

TEXAN NAMED RUNNING MATE

...Johnson Is Approved By Acclamation

By Douglas B. Cornell

Convention Hall, Los Angeles (AP) — Democrats nominated Lyndon B. Johnson as their vice presidential candidate Thursday night to stand by the side of John F. Kennedy in the great election battle of 1960.

Kennedy, the Massachusetts Senator, mowed down Johnson, the Texas senator, on the way to the presidential nomination. Then he tapped his vanquished rival to team up with him on the ticket.

The national convention of Democrats formally accepted this alignment without even bothering with a roll call vote. They whooped their approval, but with some lusty dissents.

Nobody Will Know

Under the rules, it took a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, skip a roll call, and nominate Johnson. The ayes on that were louder than the noes, but nobody will ever know whether they had a two to one edge.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida whammed down his chairman's gavel, said it was a two-thirds vote, and the decision stuck.

That was it.

This Sports Arena roared with acclaim. Delegates toe danced in the aisles. Spectators in the galleries — what there were of them—hollered and waved.

Beaming, waving, Johnson made a little speech. It wasn't his acceptance speech, which comes tonight. But there's no doubt he'll take the job.

"As an American," he said, "as a Democrat, as a warm, good friend, I am proud to stand beside and to stand behind the next president of the United States, Jack Kennedy.

"If I have any capacity to offer, it will always be his. Whatever capacity I have will be available always for service to my country and my party.

Wants To Serve

"I want to serve and to serve well. I will leave it to my fellow Democrats, to my fellow Americans, to determine what will be the title on my door."

Dissatisfaction rumbled out of liberal elements in the Michigan, California, Wisconsin and District of Columbia delegations. Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan said the choice was a mistake.

Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, one of the elder statesmen of the Democrats, put Johnson's name before the convention. He proclaimed the Texan to be a man with the experience, abilities and capacities to share the leadership of a nation faced with "ever increasing challenges" and a "crucial struggle to maintain peace in our world and to extend the frontiers of Freedom."

Thought Through Day

Kennedy wrestled through the day with the problem of finding a running mate, then disclosed his choice just before delegates poured into the convention meeting place to run through the motions of making it official.

It's a surprise ticket, a balanced ticket of wide appeal, a ticket designed to reinforce a weak spot on Kennedy's Southern flank:

In first place, the senator from Massachusetts, a liberal Yankee, a Boston Irishman, a young man of 43, a Roman Catholic.

In the second spot, the senator from Texas, majority leader of the Senate, a Southerner of somewhat more conservative leanings, a man of 51, a member of the Christian Church.

There's no rags and riches balance. Both Kennedy and Johnson are men of wealth.

Less than 24 hours after winning the presidential nomination, Kennedy swept through a round of strategy conference with party leaders from every section and of every conviction.

He broke them off to race down two flights at his headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel to see Johnson, the chief challenger for his own nomination. They talked about the vice presidency.

Kennedy surveyed the field. Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri was on the list of possibilities, along with Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

There was an element of surprise both in Kennedy's beckoning to Johnson to come to his side for the political campaign ahead and in Johnson's acceptance.

Some of Kennedy's lieutenants have shown little love for the lanky Texan, who tossed around some rather bitter words in trying to box the Massachusetts senator off from the presidential nomination.

Will Stump Country

Johnson's decision to accept the vice presidential spot and "stump the country from coast to coast" may have been influenced by the fact that his role of majority leader probably would have been of lesser magnitude under a Democratic President. He would have been less a maker of policy than one to help put it into effect through legislative channels.

—A 4-YEAR BATTLE—

Freighter To Cabin: Prelude Of History

By Relman Morin

Los Angeles (AP)—It was Sen. John F. Kennedy's golden moment, standing there in the spotlight, with the cheers welling up, the bands playing, and the prized presidential nomination in his pocket.

But few people realize, perhaps only Kennedy himself, what he went through to arrive at that moment.

For 4 years he criss-crossed the country . . . innumerable speeches and countless conferences. During that time, he missed meals, slept in more strange hotel rooms than a traveling salesman, and literally walked miles through heat, rain and snow, up hill and down dale.

There was the wintry afternoon in Wisconsin when the local managers took him down to shipyards on the Great Lakes.

Hunt For Hands

A freighter was under repair. You could see two workmen on the top deck and a sailor chipping paint on the stern. Kennedy strode up the gangplank, climbed the ladder, and shook hands with them. Then he went below decks, clear to the engine room — hunting for men to shake hands with.

In all, in 45 minutes of clambering around the ship, he introduced himself to 7 men. Most looked blank when he said, "I'm Sen. Kennedy. I hope you will vote for me next Tuesday."

It hardly seemed worthwhile.

There was the afternoon in Indiana when a cluster of people booed him. He had just filed for the Indiana primary. Some men challenged his fitness for the presidency because he is a Roman Catholic.

There was the embarrassing moment in Oakland, Calif., when he was the featured speaker at a fund-raising luncheon. The dining room was not large — but it was only half filled for a man who had come 3,000 miles from Washington to speak.

There was the bitterness against him in California last fall, aroused solely by the fact that he had come into the state. At that time, Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown had presidential thoughts of his own and preferred that other Democratic aspirants stay out of California.

There was Cabin Creek, W. Va., in the mountains, where many people are poor, and looked strangely at the trim, well-tailored man who came to ask their votes.

Once, during a primary election campaign, laryngitis attacked him. He went on making speeches, in excruciating pain, until he lost his voice entirely.

Sick, But Active

Even then, while running a temperature, he appeared at outdoor rallies — seldom wearing a topcoat — to wave and smile at the audience while someone else made the speech.

On one trans-continental trip, his plane hit such turbulence that one passenger was thrown out of bed, and nobody slept all night. Nevertheless, Kennedy went directly to an 8 a.m. breakfast, a series of morning conferences, and two speeches at noon and night.

There is a saying in politics —

"If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

County Budget Hearings Begin Next Week; Hike In Mill Levy Is Possible

By Del Harding

The County Board opens its 1960-61 budget hearings next week and indications are a slight hike in the county mill levy may be in store.

Bailey

Budget requests on file from 24 county agencies now total $1,207,486, or $116,337 more than the $1,091,149 these same 24 agencies were granted by the board in 1959-60.

Other factors which may boost the county levy, which was 4.5 mills in 1959-60, include the possibility of a need for a medical levy (none was needed last year) and the possibility that the county's cash reserves may be bolstered by the board.

The county's assessed valuation showed an increase (4.48% on tangible property and 21.14% on intangible property) this year, but the increase in valuation would bring in only about $37,000 more than last year with the 4.5 levy.

Board Chairman Rollin Bailey said it is still too early to tell for sure, but he said a "slight increase" in the levy seems probable.

All budget requests are due in County Clerk Carl Hartman's office Friday. The board will hold a public hearing on the 1960-61 budget on July 27.

Only 3 of the 24 requests in so far show significant increases over the amounts these same offices received last year.

Berg Request

County Treasurer C. E. Berg is asking $109,660 compared with the $90,500 he received last year.

Berg said the large increase is due to the need for a new bookkeeping machine for his office and additional help and machines which will be needed for the centralized license plate bureau being set up in the Courthouse basement.

Register of Deeds Kenneth Ferguson is asking $49,420 compared with $30,420 in 1959-60.

Microfilm Needed

Ferguson said the big jump is because of the expense involved in the purchase of a microfilming machine and film which are being used to copy all instruments filed in his office. The board authorized purchase of the machine earlier.

The Juvenile Probation Office budget request is $33,200 compared with $24,700 last year. Mrs. Helen Cox, chief juvenile probation officer, said the extra expense for 1960-61 is for hiring another full-time assistant probation officer and for additional part-time probation officers.

Here is a list of the new budget requests together with the amount the same offices were granted by the board in 1959-60:

Kennedy-Nixon Tussle Looks Like A Rip-Snorter

Both Young, Efficient And Determined

By Jack Bell

Los Angeles (AP) — It will be hot and heavy on the firing line if, as seems certain, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon tangle in the presidential campaign.

Kennedy walked away with the Democratic nomination Wednesday night. Nixon will have to wait until about July 27 for the Republican nomination he fully expects to get.

If this happens, the country will have a choice between two younger-than-average men to lead it in a world beset by Communist missile rattling and exploding nationalism in underdeveloped areas.

These are determined young men. Unexcited efficiency marks their actions. Cold calculation directs their political courses.

Neither is much shakes as an orator. Both speak better off the cuff than when bound to a formal prepared text.

Both will have smoothly-working organizations.

Methods Similar

But while they are much alike in their methods, they are apart in their beliefs on how to attain what must be their common objective — a secure America taking the lead in efforts to keep the world from destroying itself.

With Kennedy and Nixon as the nominees, the campaign appears more likely to be fought out on issues.

In the 1952 and 1956 election battles, President Eisenhower wore a hero's halo not matched by either the Massachusetts senator or the vice president.

Kennedy's war record as commander of a Navy PT boat was spectacular. Nixon's service in the Navy was unspectacular but solidly performed. Neither, however, could match the glamor of Eisenhower's over-all command position.

They Are 43 and 47

Kennedy's youthful appearance of 43 obviously is going to be used against him by the Republicans. Nixon, who is 47, can be expected to stress the experience he has gained as vice president in dealing with world figures Kennedy has not had the opportunity to meet.

Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion is variously regarded as an asset and a liability to him. His supporters say he will get votes from Catholic Republicans which will offset those he may lose to Protestants.

One thing is certain: Nixon won't publicly raise the religious issue.

Plenty of those around the fringe of the Republican Party are likely to do so.

Postal Transport Workers Assn. Wants 'Bill Of Rights'

The National Postal Transport Association's 14th Division called for a "bill of rights" for postal employes in winding up its biennial convention at Lincoln.

The resolution proposed federal legislation eliminate the "gag rule" and amend the Hatch Act to permit postal workers to "take our rightful place in the politics of the United States."

The 31 delegates from the 7-state region also approved these key resolutions:

—that those rights and benefits taken away from all postal transport service employes upon the merger with local post offices be re-established.

—favoring introduced federal legislation that would guarantee postal employes the basic rights provided employes in private industry, including impartial arbitration proceedings, under the National Labor Relations Act.

—favoring congressional action to prohibit all air-lift of 4c mail on a space available basis and limiting air transport of mail to that bearing the legal rate of postage.

—protesting "most vehemently" the institution of "works measurement standards" in the Post Office Department as wasteful in manpower, time and dollars.

The two-day meeting was climaxed by a banquet. Ralph E. Applequist, Lincoln branch president, was toastmaster.

Union Dispute Ends In Blows At Iowa Site

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — Three men were arrested Thursday following fighting at the site of a sanitary sewer being built by the Roberts Construction Co., of Lincoln Neb.

Pickets from Laborers Union Local 1140 brought about the fighting between the group and other workers. Officials said the dispute centers on use of non-union workers and Donald Q. Lewis, union business agent, charged the Lincoln concern was paying less than $2.40 an hour, the local union scale.

Arrested were Lewis, charged with reckless driving, disturbing the peace and assault and battery; Herbert Allard Thomas, Glenwood, Iowa, charged with disturbing the peace and reckless driving, and Milton M. Mechem, employe of the firm who lives here, charged with assault and battery on a complaint by Lewis.

The central committee of the Central Labor Union held an introductory meeting with candidates for county office Thursday night at the Lincoln Hotel.

G. C. Holtorf, delegate from Denver to the convention of the 14th division of National Postal Transport Association, made the comment and added:

"My wife and I have never found friendlier people anywhere."

"The store clerks, the policemen, and the person on the street have responded to my convention sticker and welcomed us with open arms," he said.

Man Drowns In 10 Inches Of Rainwater

New York (AP) — A Brooklyn apartment superintendent drowned in 10 inches of rainwater atop the roof of his building in a freak accident.

The victim, Albert Eigen, 49, received a complaint from a top floor tenant at his Flatbush building that water from a heavy downpour was leaking into her 6th floor apartment.

Eigen went to the roof where he found the drain plugged and some 10 inches of water on the roof.

He took the top off the drain and plunged both arms in up to the elbows, seeking to unplug the drain. Suddenly whatever was blocking it gave way and water rushed into the 6-inch drain.

The suction pulled Eigen's arms in farther so that his face was forced into the water and he drowned. It was 4 hours before he was missed. When police found the body they had to oil the arms to release them from the drain.

Oxygen Revives Man From Shock

Firemen said oxygen was administered 5 minutes to Harold Miller, 55, of the 48th and Cornhusker trailer court, after he suffered an electrical shock Thursday.

Miller recovered after the resuscitator was used on him, firemen said.

Cause of the shock, a fire dept. report said, was improper grounding of a power tool Miller was using under a truck.

Fire In Hospital Kills 225

...In Guatemala

Guatemala City, Guatemala (UPI)—A flash fire swept through an overcrowded insane asylum Thursday killing or injuring more than 500 inmates, many of whom were trapped helplessly in straitjackets.

The casualty list put the death toll at 225, including 175 women and 50 men. At least 300 were injured. The institution, part of the government-operated Guatemala City General Hospital, housed 1,600 patients.

Search Continues

Several hours after the smoke had cleared after the pre-dawn disaster firemen were still searching the debris for victims and counting the injured at nearby hospitals.

All of the 50 children in the asylum were saved.

The blaze swept through the 7 big wards of the one-story building so fast that firemen and police could not keep up with the flames.

U-2 Catches Fire, Crashes; Pilot Bails Out

Uvalde, Tex. (UPI) — A U-2 jet plane, like the one Francis Powers bailed out of over Russia in May, caught fire in the air, crashed and exploded in the rugged hills and cedar brakes northwest of Uvalde Thursday.

The pilot, Maj. Raleigh B. Myers, 38, noticed smoke billowing from his plane before it gave any sign of other trouble. He ejected himself and parachuted to a ridge on the ground. A flight surgeon at Laughlin Air Force Base, Del Rio, Tex., his home base, said he suffered a "little shock and a few bruises."

Myers lives in Del Rio with his wife and 4 children but is a native of Aulander, N. C. A spokesman for Laughlin AFB said he was sampling radiation at high altitudes.

The Laughlin spokesman also said there is a squadron of U-2s at Laughlin, although he declined to say how many are in the squadron.

Hurricane Abby Hits Honduras

Miami (UPI) — Hurricane Abby pummeled the gulf coast of Honduras with 80-mile-an hour winds Thursday night and headed into Central America.

The Miami Weather Bureau said the storm was centered about over Cape Camaron, Honduras, latitude 16.0 n longitude 84.9 west. It was moving westward at 17 miles per hour along the Honduran coast.

LAST DAY OF CONVENTION

Los Angeles (AP) — Here is Friday's schedule for the Democratic National Convention (approximate times are Pacific Daylight):

Miami To Be '61 Shrine Meeting Site

Denver (AP)—In the final official action of their convention, the Nobles of The Mystic Shrine decided Thursday to hold their 1961 meeting in Miami June 18-22.

The 820,000-member order will be headed during the year by George A. Mattison Jr., Birmingham, Ala., industralist, as Imperial Potentate.

He moved up the ladder of Shrine officialdom to succeed Dr. Clayton F. Andrews of Lincoln, Neb.

A parade and a pageant in the University of Denver stadium Thursday night closed the entertainment portion of the convention.

Kennedy, Neb., Gets Into Act

Hollywood, Calif. (AP) — Milt Forrest mailed five cents each Thursday to the postmasters of Kennedy, Ala.; Kennedy, Minn.; Kennedy, Neb., and Kennedy, N.Y.

He asked each postmaster to send him a 5-cent airmail post card, inscribing it, "commemorative souvenir of nomination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention, Los Angeles, 1960."

Kennedy, Neb., is located in Cherry County, southwest of Valentine.

Kennedy Formidable Opponent, Nixon Says

Washington (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon sized up Sen. John F. Kennedy Thursday as a highly formidable opponent against whom he will campaign vigorously across the country.

His news secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said Nixon will carry his fight against the newly-nominated Democratic candidate for the Presidency into all the 50 states, speaking personally in as many as he can before November election.

Klein told reporters that Nixon, the virtually certain Republican candidate, personally regards Kennedy as "a highly formidable opponent."

"The vice president is confident that he will win," Klein said, "but he expects a close race."

Sits Up Late

Nixon had no direct comment on the nomination of the Massachusetts senator at Los Angeles Wednesday night. But he sat up late watching Kennedy's party victory on television at his home in fashionable Wesley Heights.

Klein said the vice president and his wife, Pat, will fly to Chicago Monday, July 25, for the opening of the Republican National Convention and make his headquarters at the Blackstone Hotel.

"He wants to be there early enough in order to meet and shake hands with as many delegates as possible," the spokesman said.

A decision is to be made later on a speaker to place Nixon's name in nomination and the means by which he will make known his vice presidential choice, Klein added.

United Nations Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican national chairman, are known to be at the top of his list of prospects.

The vice president has not ruled out the possibility that New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller may seek the nomination at Chicago, but he is confident of his own selection.

U.S. Will Buy Sugar From 6 Other Sources

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department announced plans for importing 137,234 tons of sugar, originally scheduled to come from Cuba this year, from 6 other countries.

The department said the sugar will be purchased through private trade channels at the regular U.S. market price, which is substantially above world market prices.

The action left 622,766 tons cut by President Eisenhower from Cuba's share of the premium market awaiting assignment to other foreign countries.

The purchases will come—under a formula spelled out by Congress—from the Philippines, Haiti, the Netherlands, Nationalist China, Panama and Costa Rica.

Myers' Condition Good

City Street Supt. Lynn Myers, 76, of 2626 P, was in good condition late Thursday at Lincoln General Hospital. He was hospitalized June 17 after he suffered a stroke.

Demos Hail Kennedy-Johnson Combo As 'Dream Ticket'

Los Angeles (AP) — Democrats hailed the Kennedy-Johnson combination as "a dream ticket" Thursday night.

Even some Southerners, jolted by Sen. John F. Kennedy's first ballot defeat of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson for the top prize, expressed happiness.

Adlai E. Stevenson, one of the also-rans in the presidential nomination sweepstakes, called the joining of the two principal contenders a mark of unity that gives "full promise of the victory which is so important to the nation and to the world."

"I believe these two distinguished Americans will advance the common cause of all of us who know the need for a decisive change of leadership and philosophy in Washington," Stevenson said, adding:

"And I hope I can be of help to them."

Sen. Frank E. Moss of Utah was one of the first to apply the "dream ticket" label.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina was jubilant about the Texan's selection as Kennedy's running mate.

"I wish we had two Lyndon Johnsons, so that we could keep one in the Senate," Johnston said.

Lyndon Johnson was asked if he felt that his selection represented an attempt to pacify Southerners who were unhappy both about the strong civil rights plank in the party platform and his own failure to win the top nomination.

Johnson said that he was not aware of any need to pacify the South.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, who saw any vice presidential hopes he had fall by the wayside, said "I think Sen. Kennedy has made an excellent choice."

'All In Power'

"I will do all in my power to help both nominees," Symington said.

David McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union, announced he would support the ticket and campaign for both Johnson and Kennedy.

He told newsmen he had said from the start that "I'll support whoever Jack (Kennedy) is for."

"We're going to win with this ticket," he said.

'Deplores' Pick

But Joseph Rauh Jr., of the District of Columbia, co-chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, deplored the selection of Johnson.

"I think nomination of Sen. Johnson may spell disaster in November," Rauh said

Rauh was a member of the platform committee and a leading advocate of the civil rights plank opposed by the South, including some delegates from Texas.

A number of Negro delegates said they were satisfied with Johnson's selection as second man on the ticket.

Pollution Council-Municipal League Controversy Ahead?

A controversy seemed to be shaping up Thursday between the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council and the utilities section of the League of Nebraska Municipalities.

The Council has had scheduled for some time an afternoon hearing Friday for eastern Nebraska communities on suggested dates by which time the Council wishes them to start construction on sewage treatment plants.

However, the utilities section of the League called a meeting of Nebraska towns for Friday morning in order to "determine the position" to be taken at the afternoon hearing, according to Robert Perry, Lincoln attorney who will represent the section at the meeting.

Towns Expected

He said several towns are expected to be represented at the meeting, set for 10 a.m. in the Cornhusker Hotel.

T. A. Filipi, state sanitation engineer, said about 60 communities were invited to the 1:30 p.m. hearing in the Capitol. The towns have already been given suggested construction dates, ranging up into 1966, and have been told that if the dates are not agreeable the towns should "Let us know and we'll try to work out a compromise."

It has been rumored that one or more towns may question the legality of the Council's procedures in its water pollution abatement program.

End Dumping

The program calls for ending the dumping of raw sewage into streams by 1966. Federal funds, subject to availability, pay up to 30% of the cost of sewage treatment plants under a program started in 1956.

A similar hearing for the communities in the western part of the state was held a couple of months ago in Scottsbluff.

Filipi said that of the 280 sewer systems in the state, 200 of them now have treatment plants, and 80 are still dumping raw sewage into streams or disposing of it by other means.

The towns invited to the hearing have either inadequate sewage treatment facilities or none at all. All have sewer systems.

Pair Injured In Car-Ambulance Crash Released

Two persons injured in a car-ambulance collision early Thursday morning at 9th and A were released after hospital treatment for minor cuts.

Police said Carl L. Hagstrom, 56, of 701 No. 48th, was driving an ambulance en route to a hospital when it was in collision with a car driven by Sharon F. DeNoyer, 19, of 4686 O. She and Bill Faulhaber, 62, also of 701 No. 48th, a passenger in the ambulance, were injured.

The ambulance was taking a Raymond woman, Mrs. Ruby M. Grant, 46, to the hospital at the time. The ambulance attendants said in their opinion she was dead at the time they had picked her up and a doctor at the hospital later agreed that the auto accident played no part in her death and that she died of a heart attack at her home.

Center For Retarded Sets Budget

A proposed budget of $54,000 was approved by the board of the Occupational Training Center for the Mentally Retarded Thursday.

This budget, to become effective January, 1961, will receive 50% support from federal grants and 50% from other sources, according to Robert Magee of the board.

This budget is now to be submitted to federal authorities in Washington, D.C., Magee said.

At the luncheon meeting, the board made final approval of its constitution and by laws.

Board of 15

It calls for a 15-member board of directors. Five are to be from the Good Will Industries and 5 from LARC School. The remaining 5 will have no specific designation.

The board also approved the use of LARC school property for the occupational training center.

Several agricultural projects were proposed for the center. These, Magee said, included the raising of cattle and disease-free hogs.

Federal List Will Include Rd. Offenders

Newport, R. I. (AP) — President Eisenhower signed into law a bill to set up a federal clearing house for automobile driver violations.

The new law stems from a bus-truck collision at North Brunswick, N.J., which claimed 12 lives last October. State police said they learned after the crash that the truck driver had been convicted of 8 moving traffic violations in 3 states.

The bill signed sets up a register in the Commerce Department for the names of drivers whose licenses are revoked for:

1. Drunken driving.
2. Conviction of a traffic law violation if loss of life is involved.

State participation in the register would be on a voluntary basis. Names in the register would be available on request to any state or state agency handling applications for drivers' licenses.

H. Schreiner, 59, Is Dead

Harry Schreiner, 59, of 626 So. 9th, died early Thursday.

His physician said cause of death was "a liver ailment." He added that Mr. Schreiner had been under his care for some time.

Mr. Schreiner was hospitalized early Monday after he suffered a severe head injury from an unknown cause.

Since then he had been listed in critical condition at a local hospital.

The physician said the head injury did not cause the man's death.

Police said Mr. Schreiner was found about 4 a.m. Monday lying in a pool of blood in an alley on So. 9th between J and H, near his home.

He apparently suffered a severe laceration on the side of his head in a fall, the location of which police could not determine.

Mr. Schreiner's body was taken to a Hastings funeral home.

Swan Song

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

LOS ANGELES — The walls of the Los Angeles Sports Arena will probably ring for many years with the chant of "We Want Stevenson" but Gov. Adlai Stevenson will never answer the call. He will never respond from the rostrum to the cheers of the gallery and the hysteria of almost fanatical backers who filled the aisles of the floor.

Monday night was the beginning of things for Mr. Stevenson, but things were starting too late. Delegates, observers and others were impressed with the thousands of onlookers who stood for hour after hour outside the arena in support of their man, Stevenson. They carried heavy placards and signs, they walked in an endless procession and their voices were as enduring as the man who was to dash their hopes to the ground. Through Monday night, Tuesday afternoon, Tuesday night, Wednesday afternoon and Wednesday night, the demonstration for Stevenson grew in size. Earlier, when Stevenson had made an appearance on the floor of the arena with the Illinois delegation of which he is a member, he had received a thunderous ovation.

Beginning And End

But this was nothing compared to the uproar his nomination was to set off Wednesday night. His name was eloquently placed before the convention by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota. No more impassioned plea for a man has ever been made than the impressive Minnesota senator made for the twice-defeated Mr. Stevenson.

By the time McCarthy had finished, he had whipped the arena multitude into a frenzy. With subtle references and veiled insinuations, he had cut unmercifully into the man he knew he had to beat. The huge crowd spurred him on with tremendous applause at every Kennedy dig and every Stevenson bouquet.

This was a crucial hour for the convention and a time for great decisions, in the words of Sen. McCarthy. The world needed Mr. Stevenson and these delegates had a serious and solemn responsibility to deliver this man to that world, as Mr. McCarthy put it. Throughout the evening, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt made strategic moves about the arena gallery, stopping the convention in its tracks on several occasions as the crowd warmed with thoughts of the greatness that was FDR's.

In a desperate but impressive move, she appeared at the speaker's platform to present an unofficial second to the nomination of the man from Illinois. She was calm, assuring and persuasive and newspapers rolled off the presses with headlines glaring the fact that Stevenson had rose to haunt the presidential ambitions of Sen. John Kennedy. Stuart Symington had never caught on and Sen. Lyndon Johnson had failed to hold even the South solidly behind him.

But Stevenson had sparked the people and tickled their emotions. It was to be only a short time, however, before the reality of conditions was to come home to the Stevenson partisans. It was not to be long before Sen. Kennedy would roll up huge majorities in such key states as New York, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio. The Stevenson movement looked almost pathetic on the eve of the opening of the convention. He had few people working for him among the delegates and he was no part of the careful maneuvering which was constantly going on in corners and hotel rooms around the headquarters. It was, therefore, a spontaneous thing which gave him such a promise in the dying hours of this fantastic and historic assembly.

But there was one thing lacking in what looked like a tumultuous movement to Stevenson. What with all the show and shouting, a candidate has to have the votes of delegates, and Stevenson had fewer than 80 such votes before Kennedy went over the top. Did the convention turn its back upon the people? Did it refuse to listen to their pleas and consider the seriousness of the action they were in the process of taking? Did the vast multitude of people across the land, the rank and file Democrats, really want Stevenson? The answer to all of these questions is "no."

It's Votes That Count

It would have been a farce for Stevenson to have been nominated on the basis of the demonstration for him. Hardly a delegate had taken part in this demonstration and the gallery crowd were not rank and file Democrats but California liberals. Stevenson could never have been the convention nominee but he might have been the choice of California.

For the benefit of TV viewers, those who demonstrate on the convention floor after a name has been placed in nomination are not mainly delegates, but rather, outside partisans rounded up by the nominee's staff for the purpose of making a big impression.

"Gosh, Lyndon, If Only You Had Shown That Kind Of Fight Against The Administration"

Most Worthy Service

The University of Colorado deserves widespread recognition for a service of unusual timeliness and value.

For several years now it has conducted a summer workshop for Indian students. This year 18 tribes were represented, ranging from North Dakota and Montana to Arizona. It is a workshop in which Indian youth discusses the changes and trends in Indian life and studies ways and means of accommodation.

The Indian problem in the United States stands apart from all other racial problems. While with the others there is the objective of assimilation on equal terms with the white society, the Indians remain as a nation within a nation, a tightly knit, self-governing, deeply loyal society, deprived of actual sovereignty, and of themselves lacking the economic resources for independent existence, willing to accommodate to the ways of the major and dominant society only insofar as it is compatible with tribal institutions.

The Indian's pride in his race and nation commands the respect of all, but it is proportionately frustrating to attempts from the outside to bring him into the sweep and rhythm of modern society. If there is to be an accommodation it must find the initiative in the Indian himself.

The Colorado University workshop does not find in the young Indian any noticeable desire to have done with Indianism, but certainly in such a thoughtful environment it is quite possible that the younger Indians will evolve the terms upon which economic and social accommodation can be had. When that important point has been reached a great deal of the problem of Indian affairs will have been cleared away.

Next Verse, Same Song

Moscow has announced shooting down another American plane, claiming provocation in that the plane was flying over Russian water and gave evidence of being on a spy mission.

Maybe so. Again maybe the Russians are trying to improvise another verse to their U-2 song. They would not be above adding water to the propaganda whiskey bottle to keep it looking full. If such is the case the drink will not be very intoxicating. A second instance, with so little visible proof of validity, cannot have the impact of the U-2 downing.

Moreover, the administration has exhibited much better judgment this time. It has filed a general disclaimer, has called for all the facts, and terms the flight one for scientific observation.

The Des Moines Register, seeking a logical way to eliminate instances of controversy over whether our planes are spying or conducting proper missions, has suggested that the United States inform Russia whenever it intended to send a plane in the vicinity of Red Russia for non military information. This would work excellently if there were an atmosphere of mutual trust, but it is doubtful under the circumstances whether it would deter Russia.

A more realistic view of the whole thing is that under present attitudes, anything the U.S. may do or say will be considered suspect by Russia, and that Russia will not let any opportunity slip to make propaganda hay out of any incident. With that in mind such missions as must be flown near Russian territory ought not be attempted if there is not the greater probability that the beneficial results would outweigh the losses.

Phenomenon Of Foundations

There is perhaps no philanthropic activity in existence that can match the public serving foundations for a parenthood of such conflicting emotions.

It is a case of a father determined to protect his wealth against dispersion by taxation, and a mother bound to spend the money to do good. The resultant compromise is a satisfying decision to do good by self-determination rather than by public levy This phenomenon has brought into existence 5,202 foundations with total assets of $11.5 billion and an output of $625 million a year in mostly desirable services.

Before heavy taxation there were not many foundations, Only 21 of record existed before 1900. New ones are now being created at the rate of 100 a month.

One of the earliest known foundations was created in 1800 in Philadelphia, known as the Magdalene Society. It helped wayward ladies back into the paths of rectitude. Since then a greater variety of services have appeared on the horizon of philanthropy. Education is the greatest favorite. Annual grants to it now amount to $257,090,000.

Health comes next. Foundations are pouring $98,343,000 into that field. Then comes social welfare, $90,585,000, and scientific research, $71,212,000.

The humanities receive $33,922,000 and international affairs, $32,705,000. Foundations pour $28,065,000 into the field of religion and $13,705,000 into studies of government.

Not all foundations are devoted to human betterment. The Emma A. Robinson Horse's Dinner Trust Fund in Kansas uses the return from $10,000 annually to buy Christmas dinners for horses, allowing each the choice between a bushel of oats or a half bushel of corn.

The Albert R. Brand Bird Song Foundation works diligently at recording the sayings of articulate amphibians, mainly frogs and toads.

Then there is the Intercontinental Aerial Research Fund which is busy establishing observation posts for keeping track of flying saucers.

Humphrey-Freeman Friendship Holds

LOS ANGELES—The question of too many young men in the Democratic ticket, the 35-hour week, labor support, and alienation of the Solid South all have come up in the backstage huddles over the picking of a vice-presidential candidate.

One young man proposed for vice president on the Kennedy ticket was Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota who looks just as youthful as Sen. Jack Kennedy.

"Freeman is too young," Kennedy snorted to his adviers. "We would look like a couple of rover boys running for president."

Instead he sounded out Hubert Humphrey, the Minnesota senator whom Kennedy defeated so decisively in West Virginia. This threatened to break up a 20-year friendship which began when Humphrey and Freeman were struggling through the University of Minnesota and Freeman used to baby-sit for Humphrey, who had come back to college for a second try after the depression forced him out of school.

Word of the Kennedy-Humphrey talks immediately leaked to Freeman supporters who regarded them as a double cross. For the first time since the Humphrey-Freeman team burst into Minnesota politics, their supporters began quarreling.

In the interim, the top labor leaders of the nation had also moved into the backstage huddles on picking a vice president.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, Auto Workers' boss Walter Reuther and Steelworkers' boss Dave McDonald called upon Kennedy and urged him to take Humphrey as his running mate. They also asked him to endorse a 35-hour work week.

Kennedy flatly refused to come out for a 35-hour week. But he spoke approvingly of Humphrey without giving any final pledge.

Meany also sent a delegation to call on Humphrey, including Reuther, Alex Rose of the Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers, and Joe Keenan of the Electrical Workers.

Humphrey explained that his old friend, Governor Freeman, wanted the nomination.

"I have had my crack at it. Now it's his turn," Humphrey shrugged. He urged the labor delegation to support his old friend. The labor leaders, however, did just the opposite. They called on Freeman and urged him to step aside for Humphrey. They went away with the impression that he had agreed to do so.

But when Freeman got together with Humphrey later to patch up their differences he still wanted to run for vice president. Humphrey said their friendship was more important to him than the vice presidency, that he wasn't anxious to run himself, and would support Freeman's candidacy.

Demo Platform Is Unequivocal

LOS ANGELES — The baleful headlines on the news from Moscow and Leopoldville reinforced the note of uncertainty among the Democrats in convention assembled. This sudden burst of alarms and excursions could not, in fact, have been better calculated to lend immediacy to the efforts of Stevenson supporters to achieve a belated breakthrough.

For it was exactly what they had been talking about. Not even the most preoccupied delegate in this isolated atmosphere could ignore the new storm signals around the globe. It may not change their purpose here, but it insured that the Stevenson message would get through.

As the first roll call approached, delegates were being deluged with thousands of telegrams demanding a Stevenson nomination. A fancy badge almost invariably invited a siege of the wearer by urgent Stevensonians.

Again it was the only doubtful note to disturb the conviction of the Kennnedy forces that the nomination was neatly packaged and ready for delivery.

But if this small nagging question remained as to the eventual nominee, there could be none as to the character of the Democratic party today. The adopted platform the convention is a full-blown liberal product without a weasel word. The Southern attack on the civil rights section was not only welcomed by the liberals; it was sought in order to attract more attention to what actually was done.

Rep. Chester Bowles, the platform chairman, says the platform was not aimed against the South. He pointed to language which stressed that civil rights was a national not a sectional problem. Bowles says that the Democrats are the only truly national party and greatly wants the support of the South.

Aimed punitively at the South it may not be, but where it was aimed is obvious. It was aimed straight at urbanized America and the great pivotal states. They have the votes which elect presidents, and it is there that the party puts its trust and takes its risks.

The Democratic civil rights plank is a direct, dynamite-laden challenge to the Republicans. Can they go quite as far and still maintain their hope of winning southern votes, particularly if the Democratic candidate has no particular appeal below the Mason and Dixon's line?

"We can take Kennedy," said a southern chairman, "but we can't take Kennedy on this platform. What can we do?" That voice will be heard in Chicago, and it will contribute to the Republican dilemma.

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

Political Heat Equals Midwest's

Bill Plourd describes in the Nance County Journal one of life's well known and sudden surprises "when the family that was met on vacation trip and invited to 'come and see us some time' shows up unexpectedly a year later and just before mealtime."

By MONA B. PARKER

Yo-yo weather, The Chester Herald calls it. Not the season for playing with a yo-yo, especially. Rather, the fact that it's hot, it's cold, it's dry, it's wet, first up, then down, and up again . . .

☆ ☆ ☆

The month of heat, the Syracuse Journal-Democrat describes July, and also this year, politics, with the national conventions in order . . .

"The heat generated by convention oratory will do nothing to ease the torrid temperatures which plague the Midlands during this month."

Mrs. Joe Heitz has a pretty fair solution to offer in the Schuyler Sun to the problem of expanding government on all levels . . .

Just select an expert locksmith, she says, and have him march up and down all the halls and click the locks. Then "herd out the big chiefs, the little chiefs, the big assistants and the little assistants and all the office help and make each show cause before he can get back on the payroll."

Sitting in judgment to decide will be a jury of hard-thinking farmers and businessmen who expect at least 50 cents value for every tax dollar.

First examination will get rid of about half of the clutter, Mrs. Heitz believes. Really getting down to cases will reduce the rest substantially.

☆ ☆ ☆

Art Brown of the Friend Sentinel saw a picture of an old-time fire engine that set him to thinking how much he used to enjoy watching the shining brass boiler and white horses dash to a fire here in Lincoln.

"Smoke would roll out while the firemen raised the steam pressure. In fact, the fire engine made more smoke than the average fire."

Young Dr. Tom Wallace of Wahoo had a good workout for about a week, and a small inkling of what the life of a medico may be like. Soon to serve his residency, he helped out in western Nebraska while all the other doctors in the area were gone for one reason or another. In fact, he was the only doctor in Garden County and jumped from office to hospital to home calls.

Hank Trysla was in accord with an article he read in which one individual said they had a tri-weekly in his home town.

"What do you mean by a tri-weekly?" somebody asked him.

"I mean the editor tries to get it out every week," he answered.

"Amen," added the Dakota County Star editor.

Editor Max Martin returned home to Pawnee City from vacationing, a trifle disillusioned on the commercialization of the world in general and his particular destination in particular . . .

"Estes Park proved to be a beautiful city, geared to only one industry—tourists with money to spend. All the other resort places seemed to reap their livelihood from the same product . . . Where there used to be a one-roomed museum with Buffalo Bill's guns, saddles, etc., in it, the building is now one room of museum and four rooms of souvenirs for sale."

Norris Alfred went fishing a couple of evenings. The Polk Progress newsman didn't catch himself any fish, but he did absorb a big helping of philosophy and discovered for himself the true perspective of man and universe . . .

". . . the evenings were clear and the stars were very bright. We contemplated all that space above us and wondered why the U.S. and Russia were arguing about the pinhead of space taken up by earth and atmosphere . . ."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Ingredients For Big Stage Show

LOS ANGELES—So much of what has been happening here seems almost ludicrously irrelevant against the backdrop of the fearful sweep of events in the far corners of the earth. It is as though an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic were being held in the midst of a hurricane.

The words spoken by the delegates and their leaders have often been brave words, professedly bold words. But before the ink was dry, they were out of date. From Cuba, from Leopoldville, from London, Moscow, Washington comes the roar of revolutionary change moving at a pace so fast that the time-worn machinery of a political convention could not hope to keep up with it.

There is another reason why what has been said and done here has for those present and participating seemed to be extraneous and even pointless. This is not so much because from the start a tight, shrewd organization was advertised as having things under control. Almost every convention has seen this same kind of organization, and customarily it is responsible for putting over the winning candidate.

But more than ever before this convention has seemed to be a colossal stage show for the benefit of television. The three big, bunting-draped islands on which the TV cameras are mounted dominate the scene in the arena blocking the view, one would guess, of a third to a half of the delegates seated on the floor.

The lights beating down on the platform and on the delegation chairmen from time to time are a fierce kind of solvent. They have a withering force. The machine itself is so enormous, so complicated, that what comes out of it is bound to seem dwarfed and unimportant.

In the solvent of the relentless camera, not only words but reputations have been leeched away. On the giant stage created for an audience of 60 or 70 million, the actors are far smaller than life-size. Whether when it is all over the damage that has been done can be repaired is the question.

Nowhere has the process been more cruel than in the California delegation. The reputation of Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown has been gravely damaged. It seems hard to believe that only a few months ago he was listed as a presidential possibility, an alternative to Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Vacillating under pressures from one side and the other, Brown emerged with the effectiveness of his delegation largely nullified and his own role reduced close to the vanishing point. Part of his trouble, of course, has been the kind of division that can be found in the Democratic party in many areas. On one side is the old organization, typified in this state by Oilman Edwin L. Pauley and those who have helped to foot the bill for greasing the machinery. On the other side are the California Democratic clubs which have come into being in recent years as a challenge to the old-line Democrats.

The Democratic clubs represent the independents, the mavericks, the eggheads, the oddballs, the idealists—the core, in other words, of the support of Adlai Stevenson in this convention. They helped to elect Brown two years ago with a majority of more than one million, although it should be added that the quarreling in the Republican party gave him a big headstart. So caught betwixt and between, Brown has emerged as a sadly reduced figure, failing in the practical goal of every politician to ride the horse he believed certain to be the winner.

In the Minnesota delegation, the same conflict was evident. Through long, weary hours Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Gov. Orville Freeman fought it out, and essentially on the same lines—organization, the pressure to be on the winning side, and the pull of the Stevensonian attraction for the independent spirit.

In this sea of conflict under the television lights, it has been difficult, if not impossible, merely to stand still and be grateful for neither gains nor losses. Gov. David Lawrence of Pennsylvania has been more successful than most. He held his own stance and let nature take its course with his big delegation, meanwhile admitting ruefully in private the pressures he was under.

The curbs applied by television for the vast unseen audience are real enough. Young Sen. Frank Church, the keynoter, had learned his keynote speech by heart. But he was told by the managers of the show that he would have to read it from the teleprompter rather than recite it from memory, since only by reading it off a movable tape would he present the correct angle to the cameras. In advance of his speech, he made two trial films, one reading from the teleprompter, one reciting from memory. The test convinced him the technicians were right.

Perhaps all that one can say, hopefully, is that we have not yet learned to live in this strange new world. The Gettysburg Address read from a teleprompter might not have gone unnoticed as it did on that memorable occasion when the popular orator of the time captured the plaudits. But the words spoken by Lincoln had the sound of immortality, which is why they have lived, and that may be the real lesson of this somewhat sad occasion.

NUMBER 13 MAGIC TO WHEAT FARMERS

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Reynolds — Anyone who thinks "13" is unlucky ought to see the lineup of farmers hoping to have their ripened wheat described by that magic number.

After two nights of rain, a sunny day finds farmers parading to grain elevators in anxious quest of that "13"—or a number as close to it as possible. The description is the moisture content of their newly cut wheat.

At the Reynolds Farmers Union Co-op elevator, for example, Joe Bishop and Joe Cacak boosted the day's total of inquiring farmers to near the two-dozen mark. Cans in hand, they stood by as employe Orville Cook ran moisture tests with an electronic machine.

"Lincoln and Omaha grain terminals just lowered the acceptable moisture content from 14 to 13 per cent, so we have to follow," explained Ira J. Beachler, elevator manager. "We hear they've been getting too much wet wheat."

Farmers bringing in samples are reluctant to continue combining if the rain-dampened grain tests much above the 13 mark. Moisture exceeding that means they will have to pay for having the wheat dried—at rates ranging from 5¼ cents per bushel at 14 per cent to 15 cents for wheat testing 19 per cent.

Anxious to get at the ripened fields, few farmers wait until the count drops all the way to 13.

"Some pay no attention at all to the moisture, especially if they have good wheat," said Beachler. "They say they'd better grab the crop while they can rather than chance another rain that could lose them more money than the drying."

The elevator has dried some grain which tested 20.25, while the driest this season has been 10.5. Best yield so far averaged 60 bushels per acre and came from the fields of Laurence Hergott of Gilead.

As the waiting farmers sweated out the magic machine which would help them decide whether to keep cutting, Cook bit into a couple of kernels.

"I'd say about 16.30," he proclaimed.

If he was right, they would gamble for another day of good drying weather rather than continue combining with that much of a moisture handicap.

Incidentally, it's a good thing their gambling wasn't on Cook's guess. The machine verdict of 16.45 showed his educated choppers had been off only .15.

Doomsday Prediction A Dud

. . . Bianca Philosophical; 'Anybody Can Make Mistake'

Courmayeur, Italy (AP) — Dr. Elio Bianca's predicted world-shattering cataclysmic blast fizzled Thursday and doomsday failed to arrive as he forecast.

But the bearded Milan pediatrician took the reversal philosophically. "Anybody," he said, "can make a mistake."

"Be happy we were wrong," he told a crowd gathered at the salvation station halfway up Mt. Blanc, where Bianca and 100 followers had hoped to hole out while boiling seas, roiled by a "mercury bomb" explosion engulfed hapless mankind below.

Bianca had aroused people the world over with his prediction of a mystery blast that would tip the world on its axis and touch off a second deluge Thursday.

With 100 believers he set up a survival hut some 7,000 feet up Europe's tallest peak. There he and his followers, oblivious to the jeers of unbelievers, calmly waited for the end of civilization.

When the hour (7:45 a.m. EST) came and passed and nothing but a few firecrackers touched off by pranksters disturbed the airy heights, the sealed door of the survival hut opened a crack and "Brother Isios," a Milan wool dealer, peered out. He was promptly hooted back inside by the crowd.

Inside the hut, its windows, doors and cracks carefully stuffed against radiation, there was deathly quiet. Finally, Bianca came out. He read a prepared statement. It said: "The meeting of the (religious) communtiy took place and it was quite calm. So, we tell you that anybody can make a mistake. You too. Be happy we were wrong. Our faith does not change because of this."

With that he turned and marched back into the hut and the unbelievers outside cracked open champagne.

Billion Surplus Likely

. . . For Fiscal 1960

Washington (AP) — The government next week will announce a fiscal 1960 budget surplus closer to one billion dollars than to the 200 million dollars President Eisenhower forecast in January, government sources reported Thursday.

Revenues have run higher and federal outlays somewhat lower than the figures sent to Congress in Eisenhower's budget message. Those were $78,600,000,000 in revenues and $78,400,000,000 in outlays for the fiscal year that ended June 30.

Therefore, despite earlier official predictions that the 1959 steel strike might throw the budget into red ink, the administration will turn in its third balanced budget in 7 years.

Officials in recent months have been gradually revising upward their guessing on the surplus. Informants said Thursday it now appears that the surplus will be between ¾ billion and one billion dollars.

An almost-final tally will become available in the Treasury's statement of operations for June. This is due about the middle of next week.

There has been speculation, however, that Eisenhower himself might announce the figures beforehand in a special statement. The complete accounting will not be ready until about October.

The rising incomes of Americans resulted in unexpectedly heavy individual income tax payments to boost the fiscal 1960 revenues.

Second Death Recorded In July 6 Crash

Omaha (AP) — Oscar Anderson, 56, St. Paul, Minn., Salvation Army brigadier, died in an Omaha hospital Thursday of injuries suffered in a two-car crash north of Newman Grove on Highway 39 July 6.

The Anderson car and a pickup driven by Leonard Miller, Carroll, Neb., collided. Anderson's wife was killed in the crash. Miller has been charged with motor vehicle homicide.

The death raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 117 as compared with 158 a year ago.

GI Home Loan Plan Extended For 2 Years

Newport, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower signed into law a two-year extension of the G.I. home loan program for World War II veterans.

The bill also continues for another two years the 150 million dollars a year appropriation for direct loans to veterans unable to get private loans. Those loans continue the government-guaranteed interest rate of 5¼%.

The program would have expired July 25. The loan program for Korean veterans continues until 1965.

The President, completing action on bills Congress sent him before recessing for political conventions, approved 65, most of them of a minor nature. He killed two others, also minor, by pocket veto.

Eisenhower also signed the 1960 water project bill, authorizing future construction by Army Engineers and the Reclamation Bureau of about 130 projects involving a cost of about $1,400,000,000.

Value Of Morgan Estate Placed In Excess Of $62,000

John Thomas Morgan of Rt. 3, who died May 20, left an estate valued in excess of $62,000, according to Lancaster County Court records.

Mr. Morgan, a bachelor, left $42,888.90 in bank accounts and a farm valued at $19,000 in Seward County. He also owned 5 farms in Lancaster County and one in Oklahoma but no value was listed for these farms on his estate inventory.

Cunningham Is Critical Of Summerfield

Rep. Glenn Cunningham Thursday accused Postmaster General Summerfield of "throwing every block he could in trying to frustrate passage of the anti-4c airmail bill."

Cunningham spoke at a banquet in his honor sponsored by the 14th division of National Postal Transport Association.

"Glenn Cunningham Day" culminated the convention of the association in which approximately 50 delegates from 7 midwest states met.

Cunningham said that many of the innovations of the Post Master, made under the guise of improving postal service, are actually having the opposite effect.

"It comes as a hard thing for me to say, since I am a member of the same political party, but nevertheless it is true that the position of the postal employe has reached its lowest ebb," he said, "and this can all be traced to Summerfield."

Nebraskans Flown From Congo Area

Holdrege (AP) — Nebraskans were reported Thursday to be among Evangelical Free Church missionaries removed by air from the Congo.

Mrs. Carl Bergstrom, Holdrege, said she had received a cable saying Dr. John Campbell and his wife, were among those evacuated. Mrs. Campbell is Mrs. Bergstrom's daughter. The couple had been in the Congo for one year.

Two other missionaries from Nebraska, stationed at a mission a few miles from the Campbells, also were flown to safety. They were Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Falk. Families of each live at Wilcox.

Mrs. Bergstrom said the missionaries and their families were flown to French territory in Africa.

Brother's Death Started Jack On Rugged Political Path

By United Press International

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 43-year-old Democratic presidential nominee, might never have gone into politics if his brother, Joe, hadn't been killed on a bombing mission in World War II.

Joe, as eldest brother, had been tapped to carry on the political tradition of one of the nation's most remarkable families—the Kennedys of Massachusetts.

But after his death, the family named young John as the Kennedy for political life.

"Just as I went into politics because Joe died," said Kennedy, "if anything happened to me tomorrow, my brother Bobby would run for my seat in the Senate, and if Bobby, died, my brother Teddy would take over for him."

Kennedy's success has been spectacular. He has never lost an election.

And he won the presidential nomination by overcoming 3 major obstacles: his youth, his Roman Catholicism and the knowledge that only one man has ever gone straight from the Senate to the White House.

That man was Warren G. Harding, and he was a Republican.

Kennedy worked hard for his victory in Los Angeles. His primary campaigns were real whirlwinds.

With his large family stumping for him and holding Kennedy "coffee hours"—a technique he has used since being elected to the Senate in 1952—he swept to primary victories in Oregon, Minnesota, Maryland, New Hampshire, Nebraska, Wisconsin and predominantly-Protestant West Virginia.

Politics Important

Politics is the lifeblood of the Kennedy Clan. And the Democratic Presidential nominee was weaned on it.

As a child, he was rocked to sleep by his maternal grandfather, John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, who was mayor of Boston at the time. His father, Joseph P. Kennedy — whose wealth has been estimated at 200 million dollars—was ambassador to Great Britain during the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Born May 29, 1917, in Brookline, Mass., a suburb of Boston, the second of 9 children, he was sent to private schools—including Choate — and attended Harvard University and the London School of Economics, where he studied under famed Socialist Harold Laski because "my father wanted me to see both sides of the street."

Distrubed by England's pre-World War II policies, he wrote a thesis on returning to Harvard, and it became the best-selling book "Why England Slept." He was 23 when the book was published.

A Navy Man

The brown-haired, 6-footer, who weighs about 165 pounds, served in the Navy in World War II as a P-T boat officer, and was cited for heroism when he saved his crew after a Japanese destroyer had cut the vessel in two.

An excellent swimmer, he saved one wounded crewman by clenching in his teeth a strap of the sailor's Mae West lifejacket and towing him to an island 3 miles away. According to Kennedy's Navy Marine Corps citation, in the next 6 days he "succeeded in getting his crew ashore and, after swimming many hours attempting to secure food and water finally effected the rescue of his men."

In his ordeal, however, he aggravated a back ailment he acquired as a youth, and he contracted Malaria. He was discharged from the service in 1945.

Almost immediately, because of Joe's death, he ran for Congress at the age of 29. He campaigned hard, talked pocketbook issues and won. He took his oath of office at the same time as another young Congressman — Richard M. Nixon, who probably will be his opponent in the Presidential race this November.

After several re-elections, he went in 1952 after the Senate seat held by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., now U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations but at the time Dwight D. Eisenhower's Presidential campaign manager. Kennedy won although Eisenhower carried Massachusetts by more than 200,000 votes.

In 1953, Kennedy married Brunette beauty Jacqueline Lee (Jackie) Bouvier, daughter of Manhattan financier. They had met at a friend's home.

"I leaned across the asparagus," says Kennedy, "and asked her for a date."

The Kennedys have a daughter, Carolina, born in 1957. And Mrs. Kennedy is expecting another child.

Plays Softball

The Kennedys live in the Georgetown section of Washington in a 3-story, red-brick home. In the past the Senator could be seen on Sunday afternoon playing softball or touch football with Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who has been mentioned as his possible running mate.

Kennedy is considered a "loner" and a detached man. His closest friend, next to his wife, is brother Bob, former chief counsel of the Senate Rackets Committee.

At home, the new Presidential nominee is a voracious reader, a devotee of fish chowder (sometimes 5 or 6 bowls at a time) and cigars. He has an occasional Daiquiri or Bloody Mary before dinner, wears custom-made suits and is helpless to do anything about the pet name his wife calls him by —"Bunny."

He first attracted national attention at the Democratic convention of 1956 when he narrowly lost the vice presidential nomination to Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee in a dramatic floor fight.

And his writing ability came to light again while serving in the Senate when he authored another best-seller, "Profiles in Courage," which won a Pulitzer Prize for biography. It was a series of essays on acts of political courage by senators.

Wife Of Flynn Allowed Funds To Buy A Home

Hollywood (UPI) — Mrs. Nora Eddington Flynn Haymes, second wife of the late Errol Flynn, has received court permission to withdraw $10,000 from insurance left her daughters by the film star to buy a house.

Superior Judge Clyde C. Triplett granted the approval when Mrs. Haymes said she wanted the money for a down payment on a home for herself and Flynn's daughters, Deirde, 15, and Rory, 13.

Attorney Saul Ross said the 33-year-old forme wife of the late star had been living in an apartment with her daughters but felt they would have better surroundings if she purchased a home. Mrs. Haymes is employed by a Beverly Hills dress shop.

The daughters each received $15,000 in insurance from policies Flynn left. Judge Triplett previously had permitted the mother to draw $200 a month for support of the girls. Up to the time of Flynn's death he had provided $550 a month child support for the girls.

Use Found For 'Lost' Umbrellas

Chicago (AP) — The Chicago and Northwestern Railway is putting the umbrellas left on trains and in stations to work for the line's commuters.

Umbrellas unclaimed by owners for 3 months or longer will be used to stock a cart labeled "Rainstick Junction" and placed in the main depot. Commuters caught without umbrellas on rainy days may borrow them merely by flashing their commutation tickets. They're supposed to return them the next day.

The railway said the innovation provides a way to put the umbrellas to use instead of just taking up space on lost and found shelves.

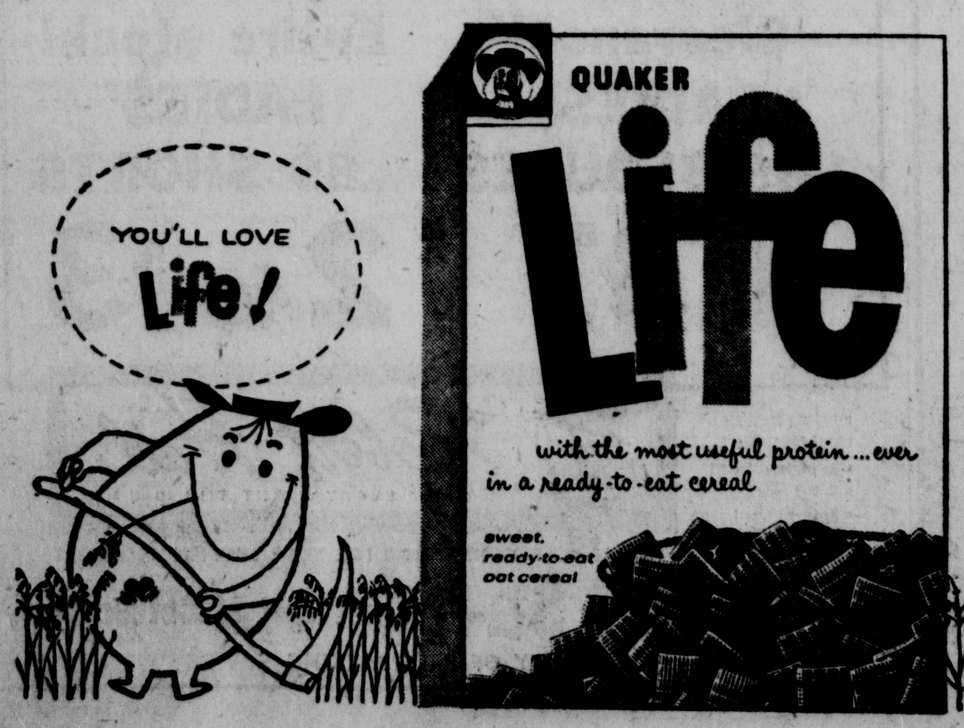
Life gives you the Most Useful Protein-ever

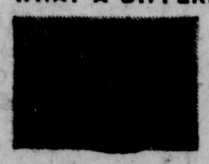
In a ready-to-eat cereal!



Now from oats... nature's richest protein grain... Quaker brings you Life

Quaker starts with the good protein-rich oat grains. Spins them into tiny, bite-sized pieces of shredded oats. No cereal gives you more protein. And Life gives you special protein—useful protein—the same quality of protein you get in meat and milk. Life gives you, too, 100% of your daily need of 3 essential vitamins, plus 6 more important vitamins and minerals. Have some tomorrow!

WHAT A DIFFERENCE IN PROTEIN...



Some proteins are "lazy." They just can't build up your body because they don't have the right amount of certain essential protein elements.

Some proteins are "hard working." They build, repair and maintain body tissues. But these working, useful proteins aren't stored in the body. That's why you need them every single day.

LIFE gives you "working" protein. The useful kind of protein. Even before you add milk, LIFE's protein is 100% as useful as the protein in meat and milk!

4 Years Of Effort For Nomination

Nebraska Had Key Spot

By Don Walton
Star Political Writer

Los Angeles — The tumult had at last died here Thursday.

As another weather-perfect morning dawned on Los Angeles, Jack Kennedy stood within one man of the White House..

Four years of effort since he lost the vice presidential nomination in the 1956 Democratic National Convention had brought him within reach of the American Presidency.

Kennedy came to Los Angeles this week with sufficent assurance that he had enough votes to win.

Holding, Adding

Once he got here, the strategy became a matter of holding what he had, and adding — here and there — a few stray delegates.

The Kennedy strength held despite a well-organized mob effort to pressure the convention into nominating its former two-time standard-bearer, Adlai Stevenson.

Stevenson demonstrators had paraded outside this great Sports Arena every night since the convention opened.

They dotted the galleries Tuesday night to roar for their favorite when he entered the arena to join the Illinois delegation.

Then — in a final supreme effort — Stevensonites jammed both levels of the Sports Arena on nominating night to shout their will down to Democratic delegates seated on the floor.

Forces Solid

Kennedy forces held firm.

As the strength of Sen. Lyndon Johnson buckled under the impact of a spreading Southern split, the result appeared certain mid-way through the first ballot.

Sen. Stuart Symington's bid never even got off the ground.

And, despite the mob psychology, Stevenson strength failed to materialize.

After a merciless 9 hours of speech-making and the rather swift vote, Kennedy kept a date with destiny which he himself arranged 4 years ago.

Worked In State

Nebraska played a major role in the nominee's strategy.

Annual visits to both Lincoln and Omaha plus journeys to 9 other Nebraska communities last fall paved the way for Kennedy's entry into the Cornhusker presidential primary.

There, he hoped to take on and beat Symington or Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Failing to attract opposition, Kennedy settled on an effort to pile up an overwhelming vote total.

He did.

Best Since 1940

The senator's vote riddled all records since Franklin D. Roosevelt's total of 1940.

It smashed totals amassed in prior years by Harry Truman and Estes Kefauver.

And, although the Nebraska victory was all but lost in the glow of a smashing upset West Virginia primary triumph the same day, it has played a part in Kennedy's success in grabbing midwestern support at this convention.

2 Nebraskans Key

Nebraskans also hold two key spots in the Kennedy camp.

Ted Sorensen, a former Lincolnite, is the Senator's administrative aide and — with brother Robert Kennedy — the nominee's chief advisor.

Evelyn Lincoln, whose father was a Nebraska Congressman, is Kennedy's personal secretary.

In Nebraska, the senator's campaign was directed by State Sen. Hans Jensen of Aurora and Mrs. Helen Abdnor of Omaha.

Loaded—In More Ways Than One

Police probably did a 61-year-old Lincoln man a favor by arresting him for being drunk early Thursday morning.

A search showed the man had $4,572.75 in cash in his pockets.

Police checked and found the money was his and that he "didn't trust banks."

The man pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to a drunk charge and was fined $10. He "paid out" and went on his way.

Nebraska's '60 Crop Output Appears As Second Highest

Crop output in Nebraska is likely to be the second highest on record, and within 5% of the peak volume produced in 1958, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

The 1960 prospects as of July 1 point to a bigger outturn than last year and nearly 50% above the 1947-49 average. Near record yields from a slightly larger acreage than last year highlights the 1960 crop picture.

Corn production is forecast at 333 million bushels, the second largest crop of record. It is just 18 million bushels under the record 351 million bushels produced in 1959 and is 59% above the 1949-58 average of 209 million bushels.

The acreage for harvest this year is 7,089,000 acres, unchanged from 1959, and 10% above the 10-year average. Yield per harvested acre is forecast at 47 bushels per acre, 3rd highest on record.

The corn acreage under irrigation is about the same as in 1959, but yield prospects are somewhat lower. The dryland crop has above average prospects. Soil moisture supplies are mostly adequate in the central and east, but irrigation water is short in the west.

Wheat Estimate Gains

Winter wheat production is estimated at nearly 83 million bushels, a substantial gain over prospects a month ago, and well above 69,520,000 bushels produced in 1959. Yield per acre at 27 bushels shares the second high mark with 1957, but is 6 bushels under the record 33 bushels per acre for 1958. Spring wheat production is indicated at 238,000 bushels with an average yield of 17 bushels per acre on 14,000 acres.

Rye production at 2,635,000 bushels exceeds last year's crop by 36%. The yield at 17 bushels per acre equals the record set in 1958.

Good Oats Crop

Oats production is surprisingly large at 36,618,000 bushels, considering that the 1,077,000 acres for harvest is the smallest since 1886. The yield is expected to hit 34 bushels per acre, second highest since 1917.

Barley production at 6,356,000 bushels is below the 1959 output of 6,969,000 bushels because of a reduction in acreage. The yield of 28 bushels per harvested acre ranks with 1928 as the second best on record.

All sorghum acreage planted in 1960 rose to 1,892,000, 28% above last year. An estimated 1,822,000 acres for harvest this year compared with 1,435,000 acres in 1959. Soybean plantings at 166,000 acres exceed 1959 by 7% but are well below 1958.

Production of all hay at 6,870,000 tons is 9% above last year's tonnage which was about average. Alfalfa production is 3,987,000 tons with a yield of 2.25 tons per acre.

The week-long celebration begins Sunday.

Betty Ann Thomas was named princess of honor. The coronation will be Monday night.

Douglas Co. Jail Again Posts 'No Vacancy' Notice

Omaha (AP) — The "no vacancy" sign hung out again Thursday over the Douglas County Jail.

Jail capacity is about 170 and there were 331 prisoners crowded in late Wednesday. Sheriff Patrick Corrigan asked legal permission to board some of the prisoners at other jails.

The request is a repeat of the problem and procedure of last summer, when Sheriff Corrigan farmed out his charges to jails at Blair, Wahoo, Fremont and Papillion.

Only drunks, vagrants and other "minimum security" prisoners would be farmed out.

Thousands Still Held

Algiers, Algeria (AP)—French authorities say they have freed 1,000 North Africans from prison camps in Algeria but still hold 7,000 as poliitcal prisoners. The Algerian Nationalists claim the figure exceeds 100,000.

New Hospital Studied For Jefferson Co.

Fairbury — If plans of a self-appointed citizens pilot committee materialize, a $600,000 memorial hospital to be financed by contributions is in the offing for Jefferson County.

A small study group outlined its preliminary plans before 80 invited professional and business leaders, and a permanent planning committee was formed.

With $240,000 of the cost to be provided by Hill-Burton federal aid, a 40-bed hospital has been proposed. The remaining $360,000 would presumably come from a fund drive scheduled to begin Sept. 19.

Temporary Chairman Morris Speir was named co-chairman of the permanent committee, along with E. C. Kruger. Other committee members are Mrs. Josephine Boyden, Robert Denney, Ivan Riley, Roy Schainost, Ernest Kriesel and Harry Zweifel.

A fund drive representative at the meeting said he felt the county would have little difficulty raising the needed amount. Several large donations have reportedly been promised already.

Facilities of both present Fairbury hospitals, the Fairbury and Lynch Clinics, were listed as substandard early this year by the State Board of Health.

DIXIE TOOK LICKING ON CONVENTION FLOOR

By Ovid A. Martin

The nomination of Yankee Sen. John F. Kennedy for the presidency was disliked by many of them. But even more distasteful was the adoption of a strong civil rights platform plank.

Southern delegates held back from creating too much commotion in hope that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas might yet capture the nomination. They carefully refrained from doing anything that might embarrass his campaign.

Typical reaction came from Texas Gov. Price Daniel: "The convention rubbed our noses."

Earned Wrath

Kennedy could have been acceptable had he not gone all out in support of a declaration pledging the party to use full federal powers to end racial discrimination in many fields.

The Southerners charged that radical groups are ridiculing the South and its traditions in an effort to drive it out of a party it mothered.

These questions naturally arise:

"Why did the Southerners stay in the convention and take a drubbing?"

"Why didn't they do as they did in 1952—walk out in protest against a civil rights pledge much less drastic than the 1960 version?"

There are several answers:

One of their leaders, Charles Bloch of Macon, Ga., put it this way: "We were sent here to represent the members of our party. We could not do this if we walked out."

Not Whole Story

But this doesn't tell the whole story by a long shot.

As the Southerners see it, the battle over civil rights—the major sore spot with them—is not yet over. There's still some question, they say, as to whether the Democratic party will get a chance to put its pledge into effect.

Many Dixie leaders predicted a walkout—but at the polls in November. They said many Southern Democrats will vote Republican or stay at home.

An Alabama leader said developments here could help create a two-party system in that state that would make it difficult for Democrats to win. Similar predictions were made for the other Southern states.

Elector Trouble?

Then, too, there is the distinct possibility that Dixie protests against both the platform and Kennedy may come in the election of independent presidential electors who would be free to cast their votes for some other Democrat. This happened in 1958, when 39 Southern electoral votes went to a states rights ticket. But Democrat Harry S. Truman won anyway.

Some Southern states already have refused to pledge their electors to vote for the nominee of this convention. New state conventions may be held in some of the states to determine a course of action for the election itself.

Bound In June

Texas electors were bound by a June convention, but a September conclave could change this. Daniel said he would vote for the Kennedy ticket but would not work for it.

Also involved in the decision to stay with the convention was a realization that there is a long road between a party platform and government action. Parties often promise things they are unable to deliver.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina put his finger on this when he commented he would fight his battle on the legislative floors.

Under present congressional rules of procedure, it has been possible for the Southerners to keep highly objectionable civil rights legislation from being enacted—although their power to do so has been less effective in recent years.

School Levy Work On Tap This Week

Preliminary work on the new mill levy will be done at the second meeting of the Lincoln School board this week, according to Mrs. Roscoe Hill, school board president.

"However," stated Mrs. Hill, "no decisions on this can be made until the school district is informed of the county's new assessed valuation in August."

According to Mrs. Hill, the special noon conference has been called because many school board members will be vacationing in August.

The board's next regular meeting is now scheduled for July 26 at 8:30 a.m.

CONDITION OF COP HURT IN FALL IS 'GOOD'

Police Patrolman Robert D. Slezak, 24, of 5940 Glade, was listed in good condition at a local hospital after he was injured early Thursday morning while chasing a prowler.

Police said Slezak suffered possible leg and back injuries when he tripped over a chain around the O'Shea Rogers Used Car Lot at 14th and M while chasing a prowler he discovered in the lot.

Other officers later captured the prowler and found him to be a 15-year-old boy who claimed he was only looking at cars on the lot. The youth was held overnight at the county detention home for questioning.

JOHNSON WILL TRY PERSUASIVE POWERS ON VOTERS

By Arthur Edson

Los Angeles (AP)—If there's any image that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson has projected in the past 5 years as Senate Democratic leader, it's that of a man with a special knack of getting other senators to go his way.

Now, as vice presidential nominee, he will have a chance to show he can make those persuasive powers work on the American voters, too.

For almost all his 51 years, Texan Johnson has prepared for this moment.

As a boy, Lyndon listened to his father, Sam, a canny Texas politician. Sam Johnson thought a good politician should be able to step into a crowded room — and decide instantly who would be for and who would be against him.

As a young man, Johnson went to Washington as a Congressman's secretary. He was to return as a representative, as a senator, as leader of the Democratic majority of the most deliberative, and often the most cantankerous, legislative body in the world, the Senate.

Complex Man

Johnsoh has as complex a personality as the political scene has today.

At 6 feet 3, weighing close to 200 pounds (since his heart attack in 1955 he had tried to hold his weight down), Johnson is supercharged with restless energy.

He has been called self-centered and considerate; a humanitarian and power-hungry; a shrewd opportunist and a political genius; tough and yet vulnerable; vain, friendly, sensitive, flamboyant.

Describing himself, Johnson has said.

"I am a free man, an American, a United States senator and a Democrat, in that order.

"I am also a liberal, a conservative, a Texan, a taxpayer, a rancher, a business man, a consumer, a parent, a voter, and not as young as I used to be nor as old as I expect to be — and I am all those things in no fixed order."

Hard To Fathom

His critics show how hard it is to categorize Johnson. Southern conservatives often complain that, in courting the presidency, Johnson, as Senate leader of the Democratic party, has doled out to what they consider the wild-eyed radicals of the North.

And although Johnson was an enthusiastic supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt, liberals frequently denounce him because he does not move as rapidly as they think he should.

But when they want legislation passed, both sides can be found, hat and bill in hand, outside Johnson's office.

Possibly your opinion of Johnson would be swayed by where you met him.

Many Faces

There's Johnson in the Senate, buttonholing a colleague, talking, cajoling, arguing, persuading.

There's Johnson at his ranch in Johnson City, Tex.

Maybe he's taking his guests around to show off his fat cattle, his lakes, his irrigation system. Maybe he's taking them deer hunting.

There's Johnson the family man. His wife, Lady Bird, is a charming hostess and a successful business woman. They have two daughters, Lynda Bird, 16 and Lucy Baines, 13.

But most of all there's Johnson the politician.

Johnson isn't the world's greatest speaker. He's at his best when he's speaking casually and humorously. He's at his worst when he's reading a carefully prepared text.

Nixon Size-Up

Probably the best size-up of Johnson's ability came from the man who almost certainly will be the Republican presidential candidate.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon was down in Texas last month. Naturally he was asked about Johnson.

"You should never count Lyndon out," Nixon said. "When it comes down to the short strokes there's no one who can handle them better than Lyndon Johnson.

"He's one of the ablest political craftsmen of our time."

Ag Uses Program To Get Aid From Illinois

Nebraska's industrial uses research program has been offered co-operative use of facilities of the Northern Agricultural Research Laboratory at Peoria, Ill., the State Department of Agriculture announced Thursday.

Dr. Fred Senti, head of the laboratory, advanced the offer at a meeting with the Nebraska Agricultural Products Research Fund Committee where he outlined 3 proposals for the program.

No action was taken on the proposals pending further study by the committee and the Department of Agriculture.

Under terms spelled out by Dr. Senti, Nebraska funds, available through the special one-tenth mill levy passed by the 1959 Legislature (LB722), would be used to employ a competent agricultural chemist to work on basic and applied agricultural research.

Dr. Senti said supervision would be exercised and physical plant facilities furnished by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, since the Nebraska employe would work as an integral part of a larger project unit of the laboratory.

Special attention would be given, however, to phases in which Nebraska is interested, he said.

The 3 proposals outlined by Dr. Senti:

—Conversion of wheat flour and its components into improved adhesives and sizing materials including those used in the fact-expanding paper industry.

—Development of economical transparent films from amylose corn starch — one type to have maximum solubility in water, the other just the opposite — increased wet strength and moisture resistance.

—Methods of conditioning to extend present uses of hard red winter wheat flour and flour fractions in the fields of food, feed and industrial use — in the latter case through drastic reduction of protein content.

The Committee scheduled its next meeting August 25.

Famed Battle Is Recalled By Vet

By Gene Budig

"At first it sounded like a million angry bees . . ."

The chunky old-timer paused long enough to get his over-sized cigar smouldering again.

"Then youngster," he followed up, "the fight was on. Why, we had twice as much noise as any 4th of July celebration."

Shaking his head thoughtfully, P. C. Redfern of 501 So. 13th recalled his first-hand impressions of the famed Battle of the Marne which broke out 42 years ago today.

At the time a sergeant with the 3rd Division of the 10th Artillery, Redfern snorted: "Yes, sir, it was a long hot one."

Nearing 72

The retired Lincoln postal employe who's nearing his 72nd birthday claimed that "it would be impossible to tell you what our boys went through over there. It was living hell."

The only consolation he finds in the bloody clash is that it proved to be the Germans' "Waterloo." The battle thwarted the German plan of conquering Paris and soon brought World War I to a close.

The crusty old soldier says that he believes that Soviet Premier Khrushchev would do well to study the Americans' role in the Battle of the Marne.

(STAR STAFF PHOTO BY GENE BUDIG

REDFERN . . . an old soldier.

"History of the battle would show Mr. K just what Americans are made of when the chips are down," he quipped.

With a gleam of pride in his eye, Redfern pointed out that when the shells were going off in all directions, "our boys held their ground and weren't about to be shoved around."

Redfern claims that after the battle there were bodies of German soldiers stacked in piles up to 10-foot high.

"It (the battle) was as glorious as it was bloody," he added.

Alaska Spending

Anchorage, Alaska (UPI)—Military construction in Alaska during 1960 will total nearly $35 million, according to the U.S. Army Engineers, Alaska District office here. Some 51 Air Force projects will total an estimated $30,175,000 and 5 Army projects will cost $3,940,000.

Jacqueline, Wife Of Nominee Kennedy, Declares He's Strict, But Very Affectionate

By Larry Grady

Hyannisport, Mass. (UPI)—Jacqueline (Jackie) Kennedy allowed Thursday that her husband is "strict — but very affectionate."

The trim 29-year-old beauty, who may become the nation's first lady, acknowledged she wasn't much concerned about politics before she married John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee.

"But I am interested now. And you get it all by osmosis," she told newsmen gathered in the living room of the Kennedy summer home in this Cape Cod town.

Jackie, who expects her second child about the time of the November election, said that "running a house around a man as busy as my husband is a full time job."

The former Newport, R.I., society girl said she was "'so happy" that the Massachusetts senator won the nomination. "He worked so hard."

The chestnut-haired Jackie was poised and charming in a gray suit and high heels. She wore a string of gray acorn-size beads ("nothing very special)." She firmly shook the hand of each newsman.

Someone asked her how she thought it would feel to live in the White House. She laughed and said, "I don't know. You tell me."

As to being the First Lady, she said "every one is different and the important thing is to help your husband."

Jackie watched the nomination of her husband on television Wednesday night with "great suspense." She said he and her doctor advised her not to go to the Democratic convention at Los Angeles.

Jacqueline Kennedy

"Jack said there's too much pandemonium out there," she said. She talked to him by telephone after he was nominated but before he entered the convention hall.

The Kennedys — if he's elected — won't make their summer White House in Newport where her family lives and where President Eisenhower is now vacationing.

"My home is now in Hyannisport," Jackie said.

Jackie fielded all questions with the skill and diplomacy of a political pro.

A newsman asked her if she had any preference as to her husband's running mate. "I like everyone," she replied.

To another question about what kind of a disciplinarian the senator is, she said "he is strict — but very affectionate, like I try to be."

Jackie said she expects her husband to fly home Sunday. She said they'll "cut off" the telephone and relax on Cape Cod for two or 3 weeks.

Preliminary Loup Chamber Meet Aug. 5

Ord (AP)—The Ord Chamber of Commerce has set Aug. 15 as the date for preliminary meeting on formation of the Loup Valley United Chambers of Commerce.

Chambers of commerce and other groups in 39 communities have been invited to this meeting at which temporary officers will be chosen and a site chosen for formation of the permanent organization.

Cedar Brook Park in Plainfield, N.J., has a garden of trees, flowers and shrubs mentioned in Shakespeare's plays.

Ord Corn, Wheat Leveled By Hail

Lincoln Star Special

Ord — A heavy hail, rain and wind storm hit a farm community about 6 miles southwest of Ord and leveled some of the finest fields of corn and wheat in Valley County.

Fields hardest hit were on the Joe Holoun, Albert Parkos, Leonard Ptacnik farms with total loss to most of the small grain which would have been ready for harvest in the next few days.

Cairo, Ill., was Gen. Grant's headquarters for attacks on Ft. Henry and Ft. Donelson in the Civil War.

Colorado Peaches

Mountain-Grown for High Flavor

Will be Available about Aug. 18 but in LIMITED Supply

• • •

Folks, this year the growers, handlers and processors of Colorado Peaches have been most seriously hurt.

Freezing temperatures in late April — after the trees were in full bloom — reduced an expected normal crop to some 350,000 bushels.

The few Peach growers in Mesa County who happened to escape complete loss have only the consolation that their remaining fruit is sizing up exceedingly well and will be of exceptionally good quality.

Those valued customers who have preferred and bought Colorado Peaches over the years are being thus advised that the 1960 harvest will be slim. They should govern themselves accordingly.

Note the present limited supply and get your Colorado Peaches early.

The producers of this Mountain-Grown fruit — so renowned for its distinctively fine flavor — hope for better luck in 1961.

Studies On Milled Wheat 'Upcoming'

Studies will begin this month on milled wheat and flour samples made from Nebraska wheat at Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City.

This was disclosed in the third progress report submitted by MRI on a project to study the industrial utilization of wheat gluten, Pearle F. Finigan, Nebraska director of agriculture, said Thursday.

Finigan said the researchers have been attempting to find good solvents for gluten along with methods and reagents to recover the dissolved gluten and to study the nature of the recovered products.

Good Solvents

The report indicated that several reasonably good solvents have been found for gluten.

"The research is aimed at breaking wheat gluten into unique chemicals for which industrial uses can be developed," Finigan said.

Finigan said the Nebraska wheat the researchers will use was procured from the Nebraska Wheat Commission. Samples of both hard and soft wheats, representing all areas of the state were submitted, Finigan said.

The research objectives are being approached in 3 steps, according to the report:

Being Developed

—Processes for fractionating gluten into pure chemical components are being developed.

—The chemical, physical and mechanical properties of the major components found in step one are being determined.

—Uses for the pure components and their carefully-controlled mixtures, or for the chemically modified components and mixtures are being identified.

The project was entered into approximately 3 months ago and will cost an estimated $22,500, Finigan said.

Sesostris Temple Patrol Appears At Pageant Show

Denver — The 55-member foot patrol from Sesostris Temple at Lincoln was the only such marching unit chosen by Shrine officials for the pageant at University of Denver Stadium Thursday night.

It is a flag unit led by Patrol Capt. Harold Hamlin. The patrol also marched in the huge downtown Shrine parade Tuesday. It was placed immediately behind the host El Jebel Temple of Denver at the head of the procession, since Clayton Andrews of Sesostris is outgoing Imperial Potentate.

Russell Mattson, Sesostris Potentate, presented to the Imperial Council a check for $48,000 for the Shriners' Crippled Children Hospitals Fund. The money represented profits of an all-star high school football game staged in Omaha by 3 Nebraska temples, Sesostris, Tangier of Omaha and Tehama of Hastings.

Mattson also announced that through special permission of the Big Eight Conference, this year's all-star game will be played in Nebraska Stadium at Lincoln Aug. 20.

"This is the 3rd Shrine convention I've attended and this is the best," Mattson said. "We love Denver and consider ourselves your neighbors.

"The weather has been wonderful. I can say that despite the downpour Wednesday afternoon because I was inside all the time."

The Lincoln delegation of 350, including 225 Shriners, came here by special train. The Sesostris 5-piece jazz band and another musical aggregation called the Hi-Fis Minus Two have been entertaining at all hours in hotel lobbies, theater entrances and street corners.

The Hi-Fis Minus Two are made up on a musical washboard, banjo and accordion.

Transcript Filed In Power Appeal

The transcript of proceedings was filed in the Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday in an appeal of one of two cases involving the dispute by two power districts over one user, the City of Beatrice.

The case, separate from the one on which the Lancaster County District Court ruled Wednesday, involves the Supreme Court decision of Feb. 13, 1960, declaring null and void the power contract between Beatrice and the Norris Rural Public Power District.

The suit was brought by Consumers Public Power District and 3 Beatrice residents who contended the CPPD should be the supplier.

The high court gave Beatrice two months in which to find a supply of power other than that provided under the voided Norris contract.

Extensions were granted, however, and on June 12 the District Court for Gage County granted another, this one for 90 days, which would end Sept. 12.

It is this granting of the extension which was appealed to the high court by the plaintiffs.

The Supreme Court has finished its hearings for the summer, however, and will not meet again until Sept. 19, according to George Turner, clerk of the court.

Lincoln Elks Honored For Youth Activity Program

The Lincoln Elks Lodge 80 was cited at the 96th annual Grand Lodge Convention in Dallas, Tex.

The Lincoln lodge was honored for its outstanding youth activity program.

Heading the youth program in the Nebraska capital is George Klein, youth activities chairman and Past Exalted Ruler.

In the field of scholarship, the lodge has offered tuition scholarships and the Richard Ross Dental Student Scholarship to the University of Nebraska, Leadership Awards, sponsorship of Foreign Exchange students and aid to LARC school.

KLEIN

The Elks baseball league, Elks Northeast midget football team, a tennis tournament, and an award to the most valuable basketball player at the University of Nebraska are major parts of their athletic program.

The annual Christmas party attended by more than 6000 children each year is one of the largest in the nation. Helping boys and girls to attend summer camps and aid to crippled and handicapped children were another major part of the winning program.

Burnett

Present Exalted Ruler, Glenn Burnett, was given an award for his chairmanship of Lincoln's Youth Activity program.

In the Ritualistic contest held in connection with the convention Lincoln's ritual team placed 12th.

Metropolitan Opera star Dorothy Kirsten is married to medical scientist and neurosurgeon Dr. John Douglas French, of the University of California, Los Angeles.

Budget Designed To Hold Tax Line

Falls City (AP) — The municipal finance committee has submitted an estimate of city expense designed to hold the tax line in 1961. Councilman Bob Rowan, finance committee chairman, and Mayor Ralph Steinbrink are hopeful that the 1961 budget can be met without raising the current 16-mill levy.

The revenue for the fiscal year is estimated at $225,406, up $5,406 from the previous fiscal year. It is estimated that property taxes will raise $105,000.

TALK OF THE TOWN

—The score is one down, and one to go—in the convention game, and we have a few questions—So, in our Things-We'd-Like-to-Know department we shall include:

1. Why can't Nebraska have United States senators who are young, vital—and who out-do Ray Milland in that Ray Milland-ish sort of way? Minnesota has one in Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

2. Where are all of the people who keep milling around and around and around on the convention floor going?

3. Do we HAVE to have more than one second to each nomination?

4. Why didn't someone tell us the identity of the attractive lady, wearing the white hat, who was sitting with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt?

5. And did the delegate ever find his five-letter word for "chores."

• • •

—We have no questions concerning the activity at home—It is clear as a crystal that Lincoln doesn't know the meaning of a mid-summer slump, socially speaking—and that the present and the future are brimming with this and that—all of which adds up to news.

Our guest book looks interesting this morning—We learned, for instance, that Miss Sally Adams — Delta Gamma at Nebraska, a former member of the Lincoln Star reportorial staff—and also of the public relations department at the University of Nebraska, is coming for a visit.

Miss Adams, who now is with the Washington State College public relations department, Pullman, Wash., will come to Lincoln from Washington D.C., where she has been attending a meeting, and where she has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, the Rev. and Mrs. James Adams, in Georgetown.

On Monday evening Miss Adams will be complimented by a group of former college friends who have planned a no-host patio supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thone.

And on Tuesday Mrs. Foster Woodruff will pay courtesy to Miss Adams when she entertains at luncheon at her home. A small group of guests has been invited.

• • •

—It is nice to have Col. and Mrs. Jiles W. Haney in town—Col. and Mrs. Haney, former Lincoln residents who now reside in Phoenix, Ariz., are just back from a two months tour in Europe.

Col. Haney, who was chairman of the department of mechanical engineering at the University of Nebraska from 1919 to 1945, and Mrs. Haney found it rather amusing to have a glimpse of three prime ministers—and none of them in their own country. They saw Charles DeGaulle in Washington—Nehru in Istanbul, and Ben Gurion in Paris.

Incidentally the Haneys arrived in Istanbul (en route to Leghorn, Italy) when martial law was being enforced, and since the travelers had no papers they were not permitted to be out of their hotel after 11 o'clock in the evening.

• • •

—And arriving on Friday evening will be Mrs. Oz Black of Denver who will remain until Tuesday as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tyner. Mrs. Black is stopping in Lincoln en route to her home from Faribault, Minn., where she has been teaching at a summer session.

• • •

—There is news in the talcum powder set this morning, and it has to do with Roger Bradford von Gillern who arrived on Wednesday, July 13, at Lincoln General Hospital. The baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger von Gillern, and his mother is the former Nancy Swanson, daughter of Mrs. Leslie E. Swanson—and Delta Gamma at Nebraska. The young man's paternal grandparents are Mrs. Kathleen von Gillern of Lincoln, and Jack R. von Gillern of Salt Lake City, Utah.

—Understand that the Lincoln Saddle Horse Club have big things on the calendar for Sunday—The club will have an all-day "Family Horse Show" at the Saddle Horse Club. The events will begin at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning and, following time out for lunch at the club house, will resume again at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

There are to be some extra-special guests at the affair, so we are told, and they are the members of the Lancaster County 4-H clubs who are participating in riding programs.

Planning the show arrangements is a committee composed of Frank E. Roehl, Louis Hancock, Dr. Dwight Cherry, Howard Hall and Dr. G. A. Ackerman — and the committee members wish to state that although the show is strictly family-style, spectators are very welcome.

The 4-H club leaders who will be on hand include Mrs. Ed Weaver Jr., Mrs. Don Hanenkamp, Mrs. Sterling Mutz, Jr., and Mrs. Al Humann.

Destination--Guam

Leaving today for Guam will be little six and a-half week-old Bobby Walker and his mother, Mrs. Cecil Walker, shown above. Accompanying Mrs. Walker (Jeannette Turner) and her young son as they board the train for the first part of their journey will be, in addition to the many pieces of luggage, the sterilizer and car bed for Bobby. From the West Coast they will travel by plane to the South Pacific island where Lt. Walker will greet his son for the first time and his wife.

The Star In Suburbia

SOUTH HILLS

The welcome mat is out this morning for Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bright. The couple, who formerly resided at 1540 So. 20th, moved into their home at 2015 Burnham today.

And to keep your address book up-to-date, the former occupants of this home on Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Viggo Christensen, have moved to Omaha.

Another couple who recently moved into a home on Burnham are Mr. and Mrs. Dell Schlegel. Their new South Hills address is 1801 Burnham.

And we might mention that Mr. and Mrs. Dean Robare and their daughters, Lynne, Jeannie, and Sandra, who did live at 1801 Burnham, are now settled in their house at 3745 O.

Neighbors are happy to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Beam and their sons, two-year-old Mark and Brian, who is four months old, to South Hills. Formerly living at 1675 Pawnee, the Beams moved into their home at 4026 Worthington during the Fourth of July holiday.

Another address for your little address book is that of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Wheeler and their two children. The Wheelers, as you will recall, did live at 4026 Worthington, but have moved to their new address, 9014 Westridge Dr. in Omaha.

A look in our birthday book tells us that Mark Beam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Beam, celebrated his second birthday anniversary Sunday, July 10, The young man had a small family party at his new home in the suburb. Coming from Omaha for the festivities were Mark's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Beam, his great-grandmother, Mrs. Fred Beam, and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. T. Allison, and his uncle, Robert Allison.

For news from the stork, we hear that a little Kappa Kappa Gamma legacy, Linda Marie Weber, made her debut on Friday, July 8, at Lincoln General Hospital. Linda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Weber, has a three-year-old sister, Susan.

Mr. and Mrs. George Healey are the maternal grandparents and her paternal grandmother is Mrs. David Weber. Mrs. Weber will be remembered as the former Janet Healey.

Shower Honors Miss Washington

Entertaining in prenuptial courtesy to Miss Ritamarie Washington of Omaha yesterday were Mrs. John R. Curry and Mrs. Meta Theobald when they were cohostesses at a dessert supper at the home of Mrs. Curry. During the evening hours the 20 guests presented the summer bride-elect with a bathroom shower.

Miss Washington will become the bride of David Kubitschek in a ceremony which will be solemnized on Saturday, Aug. 13th, at St. Margaret Mary's Church in Omaha.

Family Features

Dear Abby—

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a husband who always manages to get us lost whenever we take a motor trip. He is very stubborn and would rather go miles out of his way than to stop and ask for directions. Why are some men like this, Abby? And what can I do about it?

EXASPERATED

DEAR EXASPERATED: Some men feel that if they don't know everything there is to know, it is a reflection on their intelligence. Let him drain his gasoline tank and wear out his tires. It's cheaper than draining your energy and wearing out your patience.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I married into a family that's one for the books. My husband, fortunately, is nothing like the rest of the clan. But we live in the same city and are constantly being thrown together at family gatherings.

Abby, I have never heard people rip others apart the way his mother and sisters do. One afternoon I sat there and counted. They talked about 42 people and didn't have a good word to say about any of them. All of it was hearsay and gossip of the nastiest kind.

I am new in this family and want them to like me—but I just can't take it. Should I tell them what I think of them and suffer the consequences? Or should I remain silent while they crucify the whole town?

READY TO BURST

DEAR READY: If you love your husband, forego the pleasure of telling them "what you think of them". Instead, each time they start to cut someone down, chime in with a defending word of praise. (You can always find something good to say about everyone.) When they relate nasty gossip, ask for "proof". This will slow up their knifing sessions, and they'll soon realize that you are a poor audience for their malicious tongues.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for mothers of daughters: Some time ago we all laughed over one of your answers. You said, "What good does it do a girl to come in at a reasonable hour when she goes out with an unreasonable fellow." I wish I would have paid more attention to that, Abby, because our lovely 17-year-old daughter was never out past 9 on school nights or midnight on week-ends and we thought she was safe. But we should have paid more attention to the company she kept, for now she is in trouble and we are—

HEART-BROKEN

☆ ☆ ☆

CONFIDENTIAL TO WALT: If you can't be thankful for what you receive—be thankful for what you escape.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed envelope.

ASK—

Dorothy Draper

Do you like to hear about houses I see in my travels? Some of them are so lovely I want to share them with you. I recently returned from a trip down south where I saw an enchanting house, classical in outline and painted a most enticing Bermuda pink from tip to toe. Even the entrance gates were pink and this color was carried right into the hall which reminded me of the beautiful Palladian houses in Italy and Ireland.

There are only a few pieces in the hall but every one was an exquisite example of 18th century furniture. Off from the living room, much to my astonishment, was the Master Bedroom, a beautiful big room all done in soft white. There were two comfortable tufted white arm chairs and a table before a long window — an attractive but workmanlike desk, and a tremendous bed.

One of the dressing rooms was entirely mirrored, ceiling, walls, doors, and I wondered if I would like so many reflections on a "tired" morning. The bath had ornate gold faucets and a wash bowl with flowers painted on it, and a white fur rug. The whole house represented quiet luxury and yet it was all practical . . . and, fun to visit!

Mrs. R W. B. asks:

"I have the most unusual towel bar. It was found in the debris of an old mansion which was torn down. It has crystal knobs on each end that glitter and catch rays like a diamond. Its fittings I believe are solid brass. They are quite heavy. For the rack — it is a solid, beautiful crystal bar. Do you have any suggestions as to where to put it? Should it be confined to the bathroom only?"

Dear Mrs. R. W. B.

If your towel rack is as decorative as it sounds, why not put it in the guest room as a guest towel rack? Or install it in your dining room and hook any decorative long handled spoons, ladles or forks that have curved handles over it as a conversation piece. Or use it to show off your colorful scarves (neckerchiefs) in your own bedroom? It would make a gay spot of color with the sparkly crystal knobs.

Mrs. B. P. asks:

"I have solid ceiling to floor oyster white drapes in a chocolate brown living room. I have fallen in love with a 100 inch off-white contemporary sofa. Should I yield to temptation or steer away from so much solid?"

Dear Mrs. B. P.:

Far be it for me to break up a love affair! Yield to temptation and buy the white sofa but do get some daffodil and tangerine in there for a color pick-up. Two small occasional chairs in a yellow, tangerine and chocolate brown print would help also.

QUIZ

Your right hand opponent deals and bids One Club, neither side vulnerable. What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠K865 ♥K953 ♦AJ974 ♣—
2. ♠AJ5 ♥AQ7 ♦K83 ♣QJ96
3. ♠AK9742 ♥K6 ♦A ♣AJ73
4. ♠K532 ♥AQ ♦AKQ875 ♣4

1. Double. Though there are only 11 high-card points, and a takeout double would ordinarily indicate more in high cards, the double is still the best bid to make because of the distributional features. The hand is viewed from the standpoint of its power in support of a suit contract. Whenever partner responds in spades, hearts, or diamonds, the trick-taking value increases to such an extent that the hand can be regarded as well above an average double in strength.

An overcall of one diamond would be incorrect. There is not much point to trying to guess which of the three suits is best playable as trumps, when there is available a weapon that asks partner to name his best suit, in which case a satisfactory trump fit would become established.

2. One no trump. An overcall of one notrump is similar in makeup to an opening bid of one notrump. The same 16 to 18 points are required, the distribution should be round, and the high cards should be fairly well divided among the four suits. A much better picture of the hand is represented by the no-trump overcall than would be given if a takeout double were used instead. A double would imply distributional features and might furthermore be based on anywhere from 11 to 20 high-card points. The notrump overcall practically pinpoints the actual values held.

3. Two spades. Here, while there is more than ample strength for a double, the jump overcall is used to show not only a big hand but one that is predominantly suitable only for spades. Partner is not required to respond, but will generally do so whenever his hand is such that he would have kept the bidding going if the overcaller had dealt and opened the bidding with one of a suit. A jump overcall shows about 20 points.

4. Double. The jump overcall to two diamonds is not used in this case because there is excellent support for spades if partner happens to respond in that suit. Partner does not know at this point that the double is based on an extraordinarily strong hand, and will very likely assume that the takeout double is of ordinary proportions.

A duty therefore arises, after partner responds, to try to show in some way the excess values above a minimum double. No fears need be entertained that the double will be misread as a lesser hand. The big action comes later.

Stan Delaplane's POSTCARD

While the winter rains were pouring down, about half the hillside slid into our back yard. Many people would have been dismayed. Not me.

I tell you I was so excited, you would think I had inherited a gold mine.

"Why are you so excited?" everybody said. "Why aren't you dismayed like other people?"

"Because it is storm damage," I said, excitedly. I got down my dollar book—I got it free, though. With a three-year subscription to Kiplinger. The book is called: "Your Income Tax and What You Can Do About It."

"Storm damage is deductible," read out of the book. "Damage arising from storms may be deducted from the gross income."

I told everybody how I had storm damage. And how I would deduct money until the Federal bagmen hollered "Uncle."

As an afterthought, I also told my insurance company to take a look and pay off.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Why, that is not storm damage," said the insurance man. "What in the world is damaged?"

"You mean to stand there and tell me that my yard is not damaged, Bookie?" I cried. "I had that yard flat as an ash tray."

"It looks better this way, if you want my opinion," he said. "Not that my opinion has anything to do with the matter. It is purely a question of damage. And you have not been damaged.

"If you will read the fine print on the policy," said the insurance adjuster, with a sly smile, "you will note that it says, 'damage to assured's property.' Property is later defined as the dwelling and improved surroundings."

"But there was no need to improve the area, Bookie. I liked it the way it was."

"Look at it this way," he said. "If you had had a peach orchard in the area and it was destroyed, we would pay without a whimper. In fact, that is the motto of Free-For-All Mutual: 'We may be whipped, but we never whimper.'"

☆ ☆ ☆

I could see right away that a policy like this is useless—unless you have stock in Free-For-All Mutual. But the insurance man said not so.

"You are completely covered against damage from hailstorms. In 1919, hail the size of baseballs fell at Cole Slaw, Idaho, causing tremendous damage. This could happen to you. But fear not, Free-For-All Mutual is ready with the old ready."

"It has not hailed here in the memory of man, Bookie."

"All the better for you to be ready. Look, if it has not hailed here for so long, it could come any day by law of averages. Right?"

Well, this knocked out the idea of doubling my money.

But there was always the income tax people.

"Just put me down for a jillion in storm damage," I told the mouthpiece who wrestles for me. "I don't suppose you can assess my damaged feelings—I had intended to put in a peach orchard. That dream, alas, will never be realized.

"But, in any case, the bulldozer people charge $100 a day. You cannot argue that."

"I do not intend to argue it," he said. "For it has been argued before. Unsuccessfully. If the insurance people do not think it is damaged, neither will the Federals. They stick together like wet stamps on such matters.

"Now, if the slide had pushed over your house . . ."

"What would you suggest, Lawyer?"

"Do you have children?" he asked.

"I do."

"I would make a sand pile out of it," said the attorney.

MYF To Hold National Meet At Wesleyan

The annual meeting of the National Conference of the Methodist Youth Fellowship will be held August 15-20 at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

About 125 top youth and adult leaders of Methodist youth in the nation are expected to attend. Included will be MYF presidents of Methodist annual (regional) conferences, resource persons, and staff members of national Methodist boards and agencies.

They will represent the more than 1,400,000 members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship in local churches across the country.

Conference Theme

Theme of the conference will be "The Meaning of the Doctrine of the Church in Terms of Mission."

A high point of the meeting will be an International Night, August 16, when leaders from abroad will be present to discuss international affairs.

Among other subjects to be discussed at the meeting will be the place of the church in society and youth's place in the church, the conference youth program, and the ecumenical movement.

First Meeting

It will be the first time the organization has met as a separate group, said the Rev. Dr. Joseph W. Bell, Nashville, Tenn., director of the Youth Department of the Methodist Board of Education.

In the past, representatives of the MYF and the Methodist Student Movement met together each year as members of the National Conference of Methodist Youth. This organization was dissolved by the 1960 Methodist General Conference at the request of both the youth and students, and each group now has a separate organization.

Republicans Reply To Demo Criticism

Norfolk — Three leading Nebraska Republicans Thursday labeled Democratic criticism of Administration foreign policy as "hypocritical," "desperate," and "irresponsible."

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, Third District Congressional Nominee Ralph Beermann, and Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney addressed almost 500 Madison County Republicans at a fund raising dinner in Norfolk. At the same time, Gubernatorial Nominee John Cooper and Fourth District Nominee Dave Martin were addressing a similar dinner at Chadron.

"The United States today is reaping the consequences of the Roosevelt Administration's recognition of Russia," Sen. Curtis said. "Four previous administrations had refused to recognize the government which did not represent the Russian people but was a Godless conspiracy."

Allowed Network

Other American republics then recognized Russia through the influence of the Roosevelt Administration enabling the Communist government to set up a network of infiltration in this hemisphere, Sen. Curtis said.

"The present Communist menace in Central and South America and in Cuba stems from that unfortunate error in 1933," the Senator charged "although irresponsible critics would lay full blame at the door of the present Republican administration."

Beermann said the "hypocritical and ill timed criticism of President Eisenhower's foreign policy while the President was on his Asian Mission by Sen. Kennedy points up the Democratic nominee's poor judgment and lack of experience in this field."

Lt. Gov. Burney said "a party which is so desperate for issues that it must aid our foreign adversaries by trying to belittle our President is a party which no longer serves our National Purpose."

Wayne Barber of Norfolk was chairman of the $5-a-plate dinner. Both Curtis and Beermann will speak at another Dinner in Wausa Friday.

Criticizes Fairs

Turners Falls, Mass. (AP) — Some of the elaborate displays which turn up in high school science fairs are actually the work of parents, not students, says a Turners Falls high school teacher. Charles Galvin told school officials science fairs are overrated and are often little more than a publicity gimmick for schools, towns and newspapers. He said some exhibits are beyond the capaicty of high schoolers, and apparently are largely the work of interested parents.

BIDS ON MISSILE BUILDINGS TO BE OPENED AROUND AUG. 11

Army engineers will open bids about Aug. 11 for construction of missile assembly and technical supply buildings at the Lincoln Atlas ICBM Complex, Colonel D. G. Hammond, the Omaha district engineer, said Thursday.

The job includes building a single story 225 by 162 foot steel frame assembly building with metal siding, built-up roof on a wood deck and joists, and concrete slab floors. The technical supply building will be a one-story 200 by 88 foot addition to an existing building with specifications similar to those of the missile assembly building.

Also included are a wooden gatehouse, helium and nitrogen vessels with appurtenances, utilities, paving, fencing and seeding.

Engineers estimate the cost at $1,200,000 and will require completion 250 days after award of contract to the low bidder.

Money Needed For Rome Trip

New York (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee still is short about $250,000 of the total sum needed to send a complete, well-trained squad to the Olympic Games in Rome, and a misunderstanding is at least partly responsible.

"A lot of persons and organizations which contributed to the fund for the Pan-American Games in Chicago last year and the winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., thought they were helping the cause of the Rome Olympics," Art Lentz, publicity director for the Olympic Committee, said Thursday.

"Also, many thought that the televising of the Winter Games would bring a large sum to the fund. We didn't get anything from the TV.

"Our goal was $1,500,000 to cover the expenses of the Pan-American Games, the Winter Olympics, and the Games in Rome, plus an intensive training program for the athletes.

"The Pan-American expenses were heavy because we had 450 athletes at Chicago. Then we sent our skiers to Europe to train for 3 months, and had intensive training programs for our skaters and other competitors at Squaw Valley.

"I'd say the Pan-American and Winter Games diverted close to a million dollars of our budget."

During the quadrennial period from 1953 to 1957 the Olympic Committee collected $2,939,170, of which a total of $1,375,867 went for sending teams to the 1956 Winter Olympic Games in Italy, the Games in Australia, and administrative expenses.

That left a surplus of $1,563,302 which was put in an endowment fund. That idea originally was suggested by Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he was president of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1928.

The return from this fund pays for administrative expenses now, so that every penny of every dollar currently raised goes toward team expenses.

"The trials cleared $190,000 for the fund," he added. "We also have a deal whereby anyone sending in a coupon from a cereal package (General Mills) accompanied by 75 cents can get a tee shirt with the inscription 'Junior Olympic Champion.' We only get 10 cents on each shirt, but 40,000 were sold the first week.

Lentz points out that, although transportation expenses in 1956 were tremendous because of the travel involved, the rising costs of practically everything today makes the 1960 expenses comparable.

Vandals Chop Up Greens At LCC

. . . Pins Moved, Play Continues

Vandals attacked 12 Lincoln Country Club golf greens with spades or hoes early Thursday morning, leaving heavy damage amounting to at least $2,000 and possibly more than $5,000.

LCC assistant pro Frank Moss said a check of the greens showed holes chopped in the greens around the cups.

"It looked like the damage was in an 8 to 10 foot diameter, with about 40 holes chopped in each green," Moss said.

The course was closed Thursday morning while police checked the area. After that repairs were made.

"We've moved the cups away from the damaged area and players will not be allowed to walk on those areas," Frank said. "By this means we hope to save the greens. It will be touch and go, however."

The vandalism threw a damper on LCC Ladies day.

"After seeing all the damage, most of the ladies just walked around, and then went home," Moss said. "Nobody had the heart to play golf after seeing the damage."

Blank Dodgers Twice, 4-0, 6-0

. . . QUITE A WEEK

By Don Bryant

Big Al Brice, with a one-hitter, and Dick Kimball, with a two-hitter, pitched the Lincoln Chiefs to a pair of shutout victories over lackluster Green Bay in a Sherman Field doubleheader Thursday night.

Brice came within a whisker of a no-hitter in the 9-inning nightcap as the Chiefs breezed past the tailenders, 6-0.

In the 7-inning opener, Kimball blanked the Dodgers, 4-0, to ring up his 3rd win of the year.

The twin pitching triumph gave the Chiefs a shutout sweep of the series with Green Bay — Ron Woods beat the Dogers, 8-0, Wednesday night — and pulled them to within one game of the Three-I League first division.

It also marked the first time since May 4th that Skipper Ira Hutchinson's battlers could point to a .500 record. On that date they were 4-4; this morning they're 40-40 and breathing down the necks of the 4th-place Des Moines Demons who possess a 39-37 mark. Lincoln is also just 7½ games out of first place.

Quite A Week

Hutchinson no doubt will consider this quite a week—particularly if the Chiefs can keep rolling against 7th place Topeka which pulls into town tonight for an 8 p.m. contest.

Since Sunday the Chiefs have won 6 of 7 games, including 4 shutouts. They took two from Fox Cities Sunday, split with the Foxes Monday, and then swept the Dodgers, allowing only 5 hits enroute.

Brice, in picking up his 7th straight victory after losing 3, notched his second consecutive shutout one-hitter. He stopped Fox Cities last Sunday, 3-0, and allowed only one safety.

Near No-Hitter

The big veteran right-hander almost had a no-hitter Thursday night. He didn't allow a hit through 8 innings, but Dodger Third Baseman John Bogard socked a clean single to center to lead off the 9th inning.

After a walk to Don Williams, Brice got Fran Boniar to ground into a double play — Lincoln's second of the night — and Mel Corbo to sew up his second straight hill gem.

Lincoln had a tough time with Jim Hubbard until the 5th inning of the second game, but Second Baseman Don Bullock led off with a solo home un and the Chiefs quickly made it 3-0.

Hubbard proceeded to walk the bases full and Manly (Shot) Johnson — who drove in 3 runs in the first game with his 11th homer — promptly singled in a pair of runs to run his RBI total for the night to 5.

Dean Look's single, a bases-loaded walk and a sacrifice fly by Bullock added 3 more tallies in the 7th.

Johnston Connects

Kimball, although allowing only two hits — both singles in the 3rd inning — had a squeaker going until Johnston whacked his 4-bagger with two aboard in the 6th inning of the opener.

Lincoln had gained a 1-0 advantage in the 2nd on a walk, Al Weis' single to right and an infield hit by Bullock. But Larry Williams — who gave up only 4 hits — kept the Chiefs from breathing easy until Johnston settled the matter.

Smoke Signals . . . The entertaining duo of Hank and Marty kept Lincoln Air Base Night from being a complete flop. The singing and comedy acts went AWOL . .. Brice whiffed 9 and walked 3 . . . Williams struck out 9 Chiefs in the opener . . . Bullock's homer cleared the left-field scoreboard . . . Al Madigan (5-5) will be on the mound for the Chiefs tonight . . . Attendance Thursday night was 775, bringing the total for the year to 19,468.

Braves Gain On League Leaders

Pittsburgh (AP) —The booming bat of Eddie Mathews and the combined pitching of Bob Buhl and Lew Burdette paved the way for a 4-0 Milwaukee Braves victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night.

The victory in the playoff of a rained-out Memorial Day game trimmed the first-place Pirates' National League lead over the second-place Braves to 4 games.

Mathews drove in three of the Braves runs and scored the fourth.

He doubled home one marker in the first, belted a tremendous two-run homer in the 5th, and tripled and scored in the 9th.

Mathews' homer, his 17th of the year, cleared the double-deck right field stands at Forbes Field. It was only the 7th time a ball had been hit over the stands and was the second time Mathews had done it.

Vern Gagne Returns To Lincoln Mat

Popular Vern Gagne makes his return to Lincoln wrestling on promoter Jack Pesek's card Saturday night at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

Gagne's foe in a 2-out-of-3 fall, 60-minute match will be ruffian Otto Von Krupp. The hefties guarantee a top attraction.

Ernie Dusek faces one of the strongest men in the world (he says) when he goes against the Mighty Atlas in the 45-minute semifinal match.

A special event will pit Kathy Starr vs Judy Glover, adding glamour to the card.

Foytack Disabled

Detroit (AP) — The Detroit Tigers put right hander Paul Foytack on the disabled list for 30 days.

Foytack has been hampered by an ailing pitching shoulder for much of the season. He has appeared in 15 games and has a 1-7 record.

POINT BLANK

By Don Bryant

Sports Editor, The Star

The Big Question

Most asked question among the Big 8 delegation covering the Kansas City All Star Game: "How's Nebraska going to be in football?"

I fielded the query from Oklahomans, Iowans, Kansans and Missourians.

In turn, I asked a few myself. Soonerland stalwarts were quizzed: "Is OU serious about jumping the conference—and will OU be loaded again this fall?"

Visiting with Kansas delegates, I asked: "Is Kansas really as powerful as some Sunflower followers predict?"

Missourians were asked: "Can Dan Devine turn out another second-place team without an experienced quarterback?"

And I tried to find out from Iowans if the "Dirty 30 could have as rousing a year as they did in 1959."

Answers Unlimited

Each person had a different answer, but patterns were developed—all pointing to one thing: a bangup campaign this fall.

The one area of agreement—"The 1960 Big 8 football race should be one of the most spirited and even in years, with the winner very likely losing two games."

You'll admit that this is a switch. Perhaps much of the optimism stems from Nebraska's upset of Oklahoma last fall. This, of course, shouldn't signal the collapse of the Sooner. But NU did prove the job could be done, and the others have taken heart.

Capsules

Moving on to specific cases, with generalized reports:

Oklahoma—Sooners expect at least one good line, and probably two, and can have one good backfield if Jimmy Carpenter can successfully switch from halfback to quarterback. However, OU won't be on a powerhouse level. On the Big 8 withdrawal bit, the idea reportedly did not originate with Oklahoma City Scribe John Cronley. Credit belongs to Bud Wilkinson who planted the idea.

Kansas—Expects to be much improved, but not in the super-duper class predicted by Jayhawk die-hards. Much depends on transfers and underclassmen. Halfback Curt McClinton could be the class of the loop.

Missouri—Devine should have another tough club, but serious problems could develop at quarterback where sophomores may play a key role.

Iowa State—Cyclones will be tough. (Coach Clay Stapleton continues to draw rave notices) but they may slip considerably if they try to navigate another year with only 25-30 players.

What About NU?

Most observers indicated the belief that Nebraska was sandbagging in the pre-season dope, and that the Cornhuskers will be tougher than the summer "line" says.

I subscribe to this theory, too. There's a lot of optimism among Husker coaches, and the material is by far the best in years. This happy thought, however, is tempered with the knowledge that every team in the conference—excepting, possibly, Kansas State under new coach Doug Weaver—will also be greatly improved.

Prediction Time

While it's early—and summer school grades still have to be counted—Don Pierce of Kansas has asked for the annual Big 8 football predictions. Oklahoma has long been the choice, but I'll gamble on someone finally dethroning the Sooners.

Here's my midsummer's guess for The Whale, KU's able publicist:

1. Kansas; 2. Oklahoma; 3. Nebraska; 4. Missouri; 5. Oklahoma State; 6. Colorado; 7. Iowa State; 8. Kansas State.

No bets, please. I've done my best to jinx Jack Mitchell's Jayhawks.

Schwartzkopf Enters Semis

. . . WILLIAMSON HIT, 3-2

Alliance, Neb. (UPI) — Defending state women's golf champion Dorothy Schwartzkopf of Lincoln advanced to the semi-final round of this year's championship action with a 3-2 victory over Phyllis Williamson of Lincoln Thursday.

Mrs. Schwartzkopf fired a 42 over the first 9 holes, but could garner but a two-up lead over Miss Williamson at the turn.

They played even golf until the 16th hole, which Mrs. Schwartzkopf won and nabbed the match, 3 and 2.

Mrs. W. C. Garland of Lincoln had a tough time before finally defeating Mrs. S. J. Marchese of Omaha, 1 up. Mrs. Garland was two up after 15, but they halved 16 and Mrs. Marchese won 17.

Mrs. Garland however, clinched the victory when they halved the final holed.

Mrs. Jean Hyland of Lincoln and Miss Nancy Young of Omaha were easy winners in the other quarter-finals matches.

Mrs. Hyland fired a 42 on the front 9 in breezing to a 7-5 win over Miss Joan Martig of Omaha.

Miss Young was 4 up on Mrs. Charles Black of Lincoln and then came up with a birdie, par and birdie to clinch the match, 7-6.

Semi-final matches will be played Friday.

—ATHLETE KENNEDY WAS TANKER, GRIDDER—

Swimming Saved Nominee's Life

Hyannisport, Mass. (AP) — Water sports, especially swimming which once saved his life and that of a fellow Navy man, are the athletic strong points of the Democratic nominee for president.

John F. Kennedy, a lithe, trim 43-year-old former Harvard athlete, has had to cut down on his physical activities because of the demands of his job and the rigors of campaigning but still manages some sailing and swimming.

Kennedy was a member of the freshman swimming team at Harvard in 1936 and went out for the varsity the following year. He had to drop the sport, however, for health reasons. He was a crack backstroker, one teammate said.

Strong Competitor

Eric Cutler, now Admissions Officer at Harvard, said "Jack was a good, strong team competitor. He worked hard at it. He wanted other people to win and he wanted to win himself."

It was the same with his football career. He came from Choate School to the Harvard frosh squad and made the JayVee team the following year, playing end.

Peter Pratt, a teammate on the frosh team said Kennedy "was a tall, rangy end and he was pretty good though he never made a varsity letter.

"His older brother, Joe, was on the varsity and we used to enjoy watching the varsity-frosh scrimmages. I don't remember how they came out, though."

Saves Self, Buddy

Senator Jack called on his early swimming training during the war when the PT boat he skippered was sliced in two by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific. He managed to tow a crewman from the wreck to shore, a distance of 3 miles in 5 hours. Later, he spent a week swimming from island to island seeking aid.

Wartime service left him with recurrent malaria and a back injury that caused a great deal of discomfort until a fusing operation several years ago.

Since the war, he's played golf and tennis but doesn't have the time to keep up either game. "I used to shoot in the 70s," he once told an interviewer, "but not any more."

Good Skipper

When at home here, he sails a 110 sailboat and a Wianno Junior, a 20-foot sloop. His wife, Jacqueline, says he's a good skipper. He also spends as much time as possible on the beach and around the water as always.

Kennedy athletic events are a local legend. For years, the Clan gathered every 4th of July for softball games of varying intensity.

And on Labor Day, the game was switched to touch football. The Senator played both in the Harvard intramural league in his last two years of college.

Hyannisport summer residents have always taken a passing pride in the "Kennedy colony" here but their local pride and associations came in for a real workout.

"Imagine," said one unidentified neighbor, "swimming and sailing with a kid who grew up to be nominated for the presidency."

Players To Junk 2nd Star Fray

...ATTENDANCE POOR

New York (AP)—In the wake of the disappointing attendance of 38,362 Wednesday at the second All-Star baseball game at Yankee Stadium, the major league players are expected to vote next week whether to cut back to one game in 1961.

The players asked for a second game last year and it was scheduled for Los Angeles about a month after the first game at Pittsburgh. This year two games were scheduled within a 3-day period at Kansas City and New York .

If only one game is played next year, it will be played in San Francisco at a date to be determined. It is possible that the players might decide to retain the two games but revert to the 1959 plan of playing the second a month after the first.

Commissioner Ford Frick said he would be guided by the players' wishes.

"Actually, I guess it would be up to me to make the announcement," he said. "But what is done will be determined by what the players want. They are the group that benefits the most and also the group that has to do the hard work." Frick indicated a decision should be made soon so that schedules can be drawn up.

Frick said there was no contractural obligation with any TV sponsor to run a second game in 1961. "If we have a second game it will be sponsored by the same people," he said. "But we are not obligated to have two."

The TV fee of $250,000 for each game and the game receipts go into a central fund. The player pension fund gets 60 per cent, the owners get 40 per cent.

Harvey Kuenn of Cleveland, the American League player representative, said he was going to contact Bob Friend of Pittsburgh, National League player representative, and Frank Scott, representative of the Major League Baseball Players Assn., and ask for a vote right away.

The Monday game at Kansas City, first ever held in that city, drew a capacity 30,619. The first Yankee Stadium game since 1939 drew 38,362. In 1939 when the All-Star idea still was new, a crowd of 62,892 turned out at Yankee Stadium.

Junior Golf Qualifying Set Monday

Omaha — Playing of the National Junior Amateur Golf qualifying round will be at Highland Country Club next Monday instead of at Happy Hollow Country Club in Omaha.

Practice rounds for the qualifying will be held at Highland on Friday.

Fourteen-Year-Old Breaks U.S. Mark

Indianapolis (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Carolyn House of the Los Angeles Athletic Club smashed the American record for 1500 meters Thursday in the opening event of the Women's Senior AAU Swimming Championships at Broad Ripple pool.

Her time of 19:45 erased the American record of 20:02.4 set by Sylvia Ruuska, Berkeley, Calif., who finished 3rd.

The blonde Miss House, who is at the teeth brace wearing age, avenged her loss to Miss Ruuska in last year's women's nationals and also outswam young Joanna Blackwell, her teammate who finished second.

House and Ruuska, swimming in adjoining lanes, swam side by side for 500 meters and then the little blonde pulled steadily away. She will be a high school sophomore this fall.

The grueling metric mile was in 4 heats, with final standings based on times, but all 8 swimmers in the final heat were faster than winners in the other 3.

As Miss Ruuska faded Miss Blackwell finished with a time of 20:09.1. Miss Ruuska was timed at 20:15.6. The first 4 finishers broke the old AAU meet record of 20:34.6. Laural Watson of Santa Clara (Calif.) Swim Club was 4th in 20:22.9.

Miss House's American and AAU record was almost 20 seconds off the world record of 19:25.7 set earlier this year by Ilse Konrads of Australia.

Sidney's Printz Attended Christian Fellowship Camp

Gordon Printz of Sidney lists as one of his top sports thrills attending the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, summer camp in Colorado.

The other top thrill was being selected to play for the North in the Shrine Bowl game.

Printz

Printz, 5-11 and 172 pounds, will be a scrappy guard candidate. He was Sidney's most valuable player, and all-conference for 2 years.

Other athletic honors include letters in wrestling and track. He placed 4th in the state wrestling meet.

A Boys Stater, Printz was selected the All-Around Boy of Sidney High School. He was governor of his junior class and speaker of Sidney's House of Representatives.

Born in Sturgis, S.D., Printz plans to attend Kearney State.

He'll wear No. 68.

Sittler Adds Heft

Lyle Sittler of Crete is one of the more rugged players chosen for the South Shrine Bowl team.

At 6-0 and 212 pounds, he is the biggest back on either team. Although he's a pile-driving fullback, his biggest contribution to the South squad is likely to be as a fine, roving linebacker.

Sittler

All-Conference in both the Twin Rivers and Central 10, Sittler mixes music with his athletics. He likes to sing, and was also vice president of the Crete band. He also was elected president of the student body and student council at Crete, as well as the Letterman's club.

Sittler lists steak and tossed salad as his favorite foods, with math his favorite school subject.

The big Crete lad also played basketball, and was an outstanding shot putter in track, hitting a peak mark 53¾, 4th-best n the state last spring.

Debating between Nebraska and home-town Doane College for further educational work, Sittler will wear No. 44 in the Aug. 20 game.

Senators Snare Exhibition Tilt

Philadelphia (AP) — The Washington Senators scored 4 runs in the 4th inning and made them stand up for a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in an exhibition game Thursday night before 12,832 spectators at Connie Mack Stadium.

The American Leaguers used 6 of their 9 hits for a winning splurge in the 4th inning and give Bill Lee the triumph. The righthander hurled only that one inning, as manager Cookie Lavagetto changed pitchers the first 4 innings before veteran Ray Moore finished the game.

The Phillies, blanked for the first 5 innings, picked on Moore for a run in the 6th and two more in the 7th when Ted Lepcio homered with Johnny Callison on base.

Omaha (AP) — Papillion-Millard and Thomas Plumbing of Omaha became the only unbeaten teams in the State Semipro Baseball Tourney Thursday night.

Papillion-Millard beat Ralston, 3-2, as Tom Ernst pitched 3-hit ball. The winners got 6 hits off two hurlers.

Thomas blanked the SAC Commanders, 7-0, with Bill Davis giving the Commanders but 1 hit.

The winners are now 2-1 and the losers 1-1 in the double elimination phase of the tourney.

Philadelphia (AP) — The Philadelphia Ramblers of the Eastern Hockey League gave Doug Adam a new one-year contract as coach.

Bartzen, MacKay Seek 1st Leg Of Davis Cup Today

Quebec City (AP) — Bernard (Tut) Bartzen and Barry MacKay were named to represent the United States in today's two opening singles matches against Canada in first round play of the American Zone Davis Cup competition.

Bartzen, a 32-year-old lefthander from Dallas with a reputation as a superior player on clay courts, will oppose Bob Bedard, a Canadian Cup veteran. Bartzen, the assistant captain, is rated No. 2 in the U.S. for his 1959 play. Alex Olmedo, the No. 1 man, has turned pro.

MacKay, a power player with a cannonball first service, will face Canada's Don Fantana in the other opening day match in the best-of-5 series. MacKay defeated Australia's Rod Laver in last year's Davis Cup Challenge Round but lost the final match to Neale Fraser. He is ranked No. 3 among the U.S. players.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec made the draw for the matches to be played on the clay courts of the Civil Employees Tennis Club. The doubles will be played Saturday and the 2 concluding singles matches on Sunday.

The choice of Bartzen and MacKay was no surprise. David Freed, captain of the U.S. team, had indicated he would go along with his experienced players. This is Bartzen's 6th year of cup play and MacKay's 4th.

The othermembers of the U.S. squad are Earl Buchholz of St. Louis and Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo.

The winner of the U.S.-Canadian series will meet Mexico in Mexico City, Aug. 6-7-8.

—Little Leagues Of Tennis Set Next Week—

Chattanooga Will Hold First Junior Net Tourney

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP) — United States tennis stars of the future will be tested here next week in the first nationwide tournament for boys and girls in the 11 and 13-year age divisions. Some 100 boys and 50 girls are expected.

Alex Guerry, chairman of the Southern Lawn Tennis Assn. Junior development program, has been swamped with entries from all major district associations of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Assn., which has given the tournament full sanction.

"Each of the districts is sending its champions," Guerry said, "and we are accepting entries only from other players who are certified as sectional championship players."

It all started last year when Chattanooga's entries returned home from the Western Tournament, and approached Chattanooga Tennis Club officials like this:

"That was a lot of fun. How do we go about getting into the national tournament?"

"We had to tell them there was no national tournament," Guerry said, "and when they asked 'Why not?' We couldn't tell them. So we got in touch with USLTA officials — and got the tournament here this year."

Among the top entries will be Bob and Don Lutz of Los Angeles, Calif., and Roy Barth of San Diego. Bob is top-ranked 13-year competitor in Southern California and his brother is 11-year-old Southern California champion. Barth is Long Beach Invitational champion.

"You'll note that this is the same age group that the Little Leagues take in in baseball," Guerry said. "And, as the Little Leagues have shown, kids of these ages just naturally take to competitive sports. We think this tournament fills a definite need.

"If tennis players ever expect to be able to stand up in world competition, they must have their game pretty well along by the time they're 11 years old."

Among other stars in the 11-year-old division are Norman Holmes, Florida hard court and Dixie Clay Court champion; Larry Turville, whose father is currently acting USLTA president and who is Holmes' doubles partner; Donald R. Ball of Lubbock, Tex., New Mexico State champion and southwest sectional runnerup; Phil Irish of Bethesda, Md., the Washington, D.C., area champ, and Robin Fry of Middletown, Ohio, No. 1 in the middle west for two years.

PAUL RICHARDS

Richards Played For Waxahachie

. . . 65-Win Streak

Waxahachie, Tex. (AP) — A. A. Scott looked back through the colorful years — to 1924 when the greatest winning streak in baseball history started.

It was set by a high school team, Waxahachie High, and it ran for 65 straight games into 1926.

"We had a streak of 13 going and were in Oklahoma playing Sapulpa," said the man who coached that great team. "A senior wanted to pitch and I let him. I could have taken him out and we would have won. But I didn't. After that, we went on for the 65."

This team beat colleges and professionals dressed down as amateurs.

The accomplishments of those days were recalled when Paul Richards got his Baltimore Orioles up in the American League race. Richards played for Waxahachie.

They called him "Sleepy." He would play any position. Some days he pitched a game with both his left and his right arm.

"Once, we're playing a team that tried to outsmart us with switch hitters," recalled Scott, now a corporation court judge here. "I told Paul to go out there and pitch and wait until the batter committed himself. Paul didn't use any windup and threw a couple of innings with either arm and we won. Three times I used him in one week that way and he won all 3 games."

Richards injured his right arm one day and learned to throw with his left.

Art Shires, Belvedere Bean, Gene Moore and others known to professional baseball played on that team. Richards, of course, became a big league catcher and eventually managed the Chicago White Sox and Orioles. He was voted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame last year.

Scott is 77 years old but looks 50. His memory of that great team is clear and happy.

"I just had the knack and ability to get along with the boys," he recalls modestly. "And I always tried to teach the fundamentals, and I guess I succeeded in that."

Richards has often said that he never learned many fundamentals when he got into professional ball — that he learned them in high school.

Tom Sheehan Learns First Hand That Managing Big Leagues Is Precarious

New York (UPI) — At 66, Tom Sheehan of the San Francisco Giants is learning first hand that managing a major league baseball club is the most precarious position in sports.

He has been in baseball most of his life but never, until he was named to succeed Bill Rigney on June 18, had jovial Tom been invited to manage in the big leagues.

Since that date he is 6-13 and while he has been promised he can serve out the rest of the season they're talking up Leo Durocher in such loud tones these days Tom may not last the distance.

This business of firing managers for a team's failures is as old as the curve ball and yet the job calls for a peculiar set of talents only a few men possess.

You can be a solid baseball man with many successes in other branches of the game but going down to the bench and calling the shots—all the shots—is something entirely different.

That's why there always has been a demand for men like Charlie Grimm, Lou Boudreau, Jimmy Dykes, Steve O'Neill, Fred Haney, Bucky Harris, Eddie Sawyer, and a flock of others. And that's why so many promising young ones who fail don't try again—or aren't asked to try.

A veteran manager who keeps track of such things once said there is an unwritten rule that "a guy fired twice in mid-season is never invited back to serve a 3rd term with the same club."

An exception was Grimm, twice dropped in mid-season by the Cubs and brought back this year—only to be dropped a 3rd time in favor of Boudreau.

Casey Stengel of the Yankees now is regarded as a good manager but Casey has been fired twice by National League clubs. Once he got more money for not managing the old Brooklyn Dodgers than Burleigh Grimes actually received for doing the job. Another time, Casey was bounced by the Boston Braves.

Earlier this year, Solly Hemus of the St. Louis Cardinals was considered the "who" on the "who's next to be fired" list. But Solly suddenly has become a managerial genius. At the All Star break, Solly had the Red Birds in a tie for 4th with Sheehan's Giants.

A year ago, Walt Alston led the Dodgers to the world championship. The year before, they finished 7th—and Walt was about to march through the swinging doors..

Whether they deserve the reputation or not, a handful of managers are regarded as "excellent" — there being no "perfect" category in this business.

Among them are Paul Richards of the Orioles, Al Lopez of the White Sox, Stengel, Chuck Dressen of the Braves, and the currently unemployed Durocher.

And you can get yourself an argument, even from players, on that small group.

It's an odd job the managers face. They take the rap for the whole show, including failures of the front office, the players and their own.

As Ted Williams once said when he was asked about managerial ambitions; "I don't want any job that depends on the success or failure of so many other guys."

Moe Drabowsky Sent To Minors By Chicago Cubs

Chicago (AP) — Moe Drabowsky, 24-year-old right-hander, has been optioned by the Chicago Cubs to Houston on 24-hour recall.

Southpaw Jim Brewer, 22, will join the Cubs in St. Louis Friday night to replace Drabowsky in the Cub bullpen. Brewer has won six straight games for Houston and has an 8-4 season's record.

Drabowsky had a 2-0 record for the Cubs this season, but had an unenviable earned-run-average of 9.70. He had a five-year major league record of 31-40.

Drabowsky was plagued with a sore arm last year, but Cub officials said his problem was more psychological than physical. Drabowsky was signed to a bonus contract in 1956 by Scout Roy Johnson. He has never played in the minor leagues.

In three starts this year, Drabowsky's longest stint was one and two-thirds innings. He had toiled only 21 innings all season.

Brewer, 6-1, was graduated from the Cubs' rookie school five years ago. He is from Broken Arrow, Okla.

Harvest Gains Momentum; 65% Southwest's Wheat Cut

By United Press International

Favorable weather was still the rule over southwestern Nebraska wheat harvesting areas Thursday, and the work was described as 65% complete in some counties.

The supply of men and combines also was holding up, except for a slight shortage of machines in the Holdrege area.

Bob Rains, manager of the McCook employment security office, estimated that 65% of the wheat had been harvested in Red Willow, Hitchcock, Dundy and Furnas Counties. About 45% was cut in Chase, Hayes, Frontier and Gosper.

Another 135 combines cleared through the McCook port of entry Wednesday, bringing the total to date to 650. The demand in the McCook area was beginning to drop off.

Kansas Work Ending

The machine supply was bolstered further by near completion of the harvest work in Kansas. Full scale cutting in Kansas was concentrated Thursday in extreme northwestern counties.

Combining was finished or was reaching its peak in Republic, Jewell, Osborn and Smith Counties, and all Kansas offices reported adequate labor and combines to finish.

In the North Platte area, the supply of combines and men also was adequate, and many combines were moving westward to the Grant area, where full scale cutting was expected to begin about Monday.

Excellent Yields Seen For Kimball

Kimball (AP)—Kimball County wheat was rolling slowly into elevators Thursday and indications were that yields would be excellent on fields not hit by hail.

Hail cut a wide swath through the southern part of the county, with some farmers reporting a total loss.

Carl Yung brought in a load cut from a field about 7 miles north of Kimball. The wheat averaged about 25 bushels per acre and had a moisture content of 16%.

Farmers said it probably would be next week at least before the harvest gets into full swing in the Kimball area.

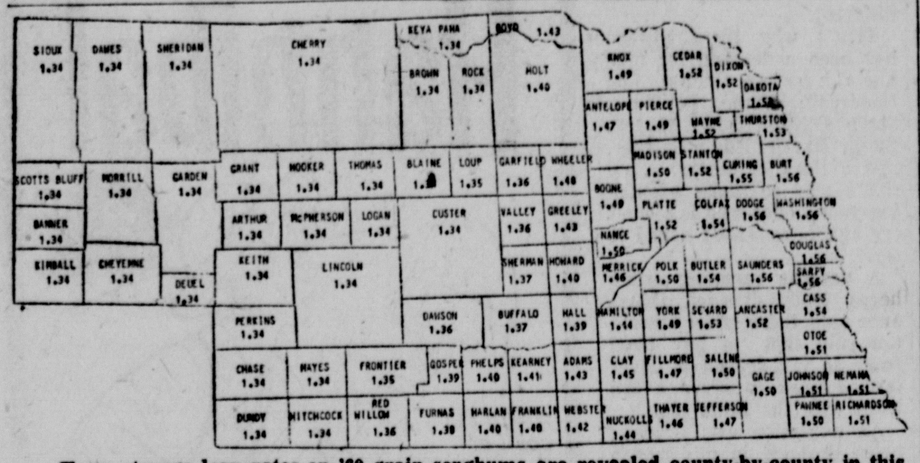
Boxcar Shortage Looms In State

Holdrege (AP) — Delay of harvesting operations to the South had Holdrege elevator operators worried Thursday over a shortage of boxcars to transport the wheat crop.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad said no cars arrived Wednesday, but some were promised Thursday.

"It all depends on how fast they turn them in at the terminals," said one elevator operator.



Farm storage loan rates on '60 grain sorghums are revealed county-by-county in this Nebraska map.

Nebraska Elks Program Cited For Youth Work

Dallas (AP)—The Nebraska State Elks Assn. and the lodges at Lincoln and Scottsbluff were honored for youth programs at the national Elks convention.

Nebraska as a state was cited for sponsoring one of the top 3 programs.

Lincoln was first in its division, over 1,000 members, for its youth program, and Scottsbluff first in its division, 500-1,000 members, for its overall program.

Scottsbluff was first in its division for sponsoring the top Youth Day Program.

S. Dakotans Launch Drive For Seaton

Brookings, S. D. (UPI)—Brookings County Republicans have launched active support for Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton for the GOP vice presidential nomination.

The county GOP central committee and The Brookings Register, editorially, ask South Dakota party members to "take recognition of the many qualities" of the Hastings, Neb., publisher.

Charles A. Mitchell, editor of the newspaper, has sent such a letter to South Dakota Republican officials and delegates to the national convention later this month.

The Register said Seaton has acknowledged he would accept second place on the ballot and urged the state GOP convention, which will be in Pierre Aug. 1, to endorse him.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD), who has been suggested by Sioux Falls Republicans as vice presidential timber, has suggested Seaton actively, as has Sen. Francis Case (R-SD).

Storage Rates For Sorghums, Barley Listed

The 1960 purchase agreement rates for farm storage of barley and grain sorghums were announced Thursday by the State Agricultural Stabilization Committee.

The sorghum rates varied from $1.34 per cwt. over the western part of the state to $1.56 in Burt, Dodge, Douglas, Sarpy, Saunders and Washington Counties in the east.

The rate for Lancaster County is $1.52 per cwt. All rates are based on U.S. No. 2 grain with moisture not to exceed 13 per cent.

The barley rates ranged from 69 cents a bushel in Sioux and Kimball Counties to 87 cents in Douglas and Sarpy Counties.

Pair Treated For Cuts After One-Car Accident

Two persons injured in a one-car accident Thursday morning on 56th between Roose and Lillibridge were both released after hospital treatment for cuts.

Police said Robert M. Pacheo, 26, of 1209 Peach, lost control of the car he was driving and it rammed a telephone pole. He and a passenger, Delphine L. Ott, 23, of 2140 U, both suffered face cuts.

Rally Fizzles; Stocks Down

New York (AP) — An early technical rally fizzled Thursday and the stock market declined for the fourth straight session. Trading was the slowest in three months.

The heaviness in the market, brokers said, seemed to reflect lingering worries about the international situation, the growing doubts about the scope of the predicted business pickup, and concern over failure of some stocks to respond even to good news.

American Motors was sold heavily after a Dow Jones news ticker item reported that sales of Rambler cars in the first third of July were below the year ago period. The stock sank to a new low.

Wall Street appeared to take in its stride the Democratic presidential nomination of Sen. John F. Kennedy, the event having been well anticipated.

Volume sank to 2,480,000 shares from 2,590,000 shares Wednesday and was the lightest since April 12 when 2,470,000 shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial average declined .79 to 631.32.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell .20 to 219.20 with the industrials down .10, the rails down .50 and the utilities down .10.

Of 1,191 issues traded, 423 rose and 512 fell. New highs for the year totaled 26 and new lows 44.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed on very light volume of 809,000 shares compared with 990,000 Wednesday.

Many U.S. government established 1960 highs for the second or third time this week. Trading was quieter than earlier this week. Corporates closed steady to slightly higher on reduced volume.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange declined to $4,470,000 par value from $5,360,000 Wednesday, highest in two weeks.

Grain Prices Slip Slightly

Chicago (AP) — The grain futures market generally slid off slightly Thursday in sluggish dealings on the Board of Trade. Most setbacks were in small fractions although soybeans were under fairly heavy pressure at times.

Significant commercial influences were lacking and traders generally appeared to be marking time awaiting new market factors or consolidating positions in the light of continuing weather and crop advices.

At their worst, all soybean deliveries were off major fractions to a cent or more about midday on further weakness in soybean oil and soybean meal. However, short covering at the lower levels recovered some of the losses. It was the third successive decline, though, in the soybean market.

Wheat was unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel lower at the close, July $1.82⅝-⅞; corn ⅛-⅜ lower, July $1.17½-14; oats ¼-1 cent lower, July 69 cents; rye ¼-⅜ lower, July $1.15¼-15; soybeans ½-¾ lower, July $2.12½-⅝.

Boss Will Trade Senate Reins With Youth Who Sat In Back Row

By Jack Bell

Los Angeles (AP) — The boss is about to trade places in the Senate with one of the youngsters who sits in the back row.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's acceptance of second place on a ticket headed by Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts means there are going to be some changes made when the Senate reconvenes Aug. 8.

Johnson, who has been used to giving orders as the Senate's Democratic leader, is going to be in the position of taking some now from a man he previously discounted as too immature to hold down the presidency.

Of course, everything will be done in a polite way.

Kennedy is not one to rub in his victory over the Senate's master for the top nomination. He will defer publicly to Johnson. But as the son said about Lola: What Kennedy wants, Kennedy gets, in this case.

With his name on the ticket with Kennedy, Johnson will have a personal stake in doing everything he can to advance the kind of legislative program the Massachusetts senator wants completed in the weeks before final adjournment.

This has not always been so in the past.

Often Stopped Jack

Johnson often has stopped the Senate Democrats short of giving Kennedy what he wanted in legislation.

The Texas senator's decision to accept second place on the ticket might be puzzling to his political friends.

But if there was any doubt why Kennedy wanted him as a runningmate it was answered by the stream of Southern callers who told Kennedy in blunt terms that he is in deep trouble in Dixie.

Southerners had banked on the convention's selecting Johnson as the presidential nominee to offset a stringent civil rights plan. They were sore at his defeat and showed it.

Well aware of the incipient rebellion, Kennedy sent out hurry up calls for Southern leaders.

Govs. Respond

Govs. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina responded quickly. Terry Sanford, Democratic nominee for governor of North Carolina, followed them into Kennedy's suite.

When Vandiver came out, it was with no cheerful news for Kennedy's backers. The governor declined to say whether he will support the national ticket in November.

"I advised Mr. Kennedy that our state has a statute providing for independent electors," Vandiver said.

"I did not make that statement as a threat but I told him the use of this statute was a possibility. He was asking for facts and I was relating them to him."

The Georgia governor added that he had told Kennedy that although he had no personal prejudice, "the fact that he is a Catholic would be an issue in Georgia as it was in 1928 when Al Smith was the Democratic nominee."

Lost To Hoover

Smith lost to Republican Herbert Hoover and carried the traditionally Democratic South.

The presence of Johnson, a Protestant and a Southerner, on the ticket was calculated to quell any revolt.

It seemed likely to give Kennedy Texas' 24 electoral votes and to minimize the chances of his losing such states as Florida, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee.

If the Democrats win in November, he will become the Senate's presiding officer and a vice president who will try to outshine Richard M. Nixon in activity in the job.

If the Democrats lose, rightly or wrongly party members are likely to attribute their defeat to Kennedy's Catholicism. The Massachusetts senator would have almost no chance to get a second nomination.

Johnson might emerge as the Democratic spokesman. By 1964 the conditions might be favorable for a dream to come true — nomination for the presidency.

Metropolitan Employment Continues Rise In June

Employment in the metropolitan Lincoln area continued its upward climb during the month of June.

The State Department of Labor indicated that the major cause of the increase—250 above May—was due to the large number of student entrants into the labor force.

The department cited the increase in the labor supply of clerical workers from May's 18% to the present 26% as an indicator of the student influx.

Unemployment Up

Although the large number of summer workers eased the pressure on available labor supply—caused by recent employment expansion—they were the genesis of an increase in unemployment. June's unemployment level increased 300 to a current level of 1,650.

A year ago, unemployment represented 2.1% of the total labor force. Last month's percentage was 2.2% and the present figure is 2.6%.

The only field reporting a drop in employment totals was government. Gains in street, highway, and maintenance work were more than offset by the loss in education due to summer vacations and closing of schools. The total drop was 300 persons.

Construction Down

Because of the completion of the airbase housing project, the increase in construction workers was not as large as usual. The gain during the month was only 100 people.

Other gains:

Manufacturing: advanced 150, due mainly to renewed and increased business activity.

Transportation, communication and other utilities: gained 100, due to an increase in outdoor maintenance work.

Finance, insurance and real estate: added 100, due to increased personnel totals for vacation replacements.

Seasonal Rises

In Seward and Saline counties seasonal expansion in construction and agriculture accounted for employment increases.

The Hallam nuclear power plant and the atlas missile base near Crete caused an increase in the demand for construction workers although the specialized workers wanted are not available in the area.

Grain mill and lumber and wood industries gave a boost to seasonal employment.

4 Are Indicted In Connection With Shooting

Kansas City (AP) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted 4 Omaha and Kansas City men in the ambush shooting of a narcotics case witness.

The 4 men are Athony Biase, 52, Omaha, already under indictments of 8 narcotics violations; Carlton A Young, Kansas City, Kan.; and Anthony J. (Tiger) Cardarella and Felix (Little Phil) Ferina, Kansas City hoodlums.

They were accused in the shooting of Kenneth Bruce Sheetz, Kansas City ex-convict who had testified before the federal grand jury that indicted Biase on the narcotics charges in Omaha March 20.

Thursday's indictment charged Cardarella, 34, accompanied by Ferina, also 34, fired 6 shots at Sheetz so he could not testify against Biase when the latter comes to trial.

Wounds Fatal

Sheetz was wounded critically by 3 of the bullets at his home June 20.

Biase is accused of conspiracy in the attempted murder of Sheetz.

Young allegedly tried to persuade and intimidate Sheetz from testifying against Biase. The grand jury said Young's activities occurred between April 1 and April 30.

Ferina and Cardarella were indicted Tuesday by a Jackson County grand jury on charges of attempted murder in the Sheetz case. They were free under $50,000 bonds on those indictments.

The grand jury was released, but U.S. Dist. Atty. Edward L. Scheufler said the jury would be recalled in a few weeks to complete work on some cases and to consider some new business.
